

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

+ + + + +

COPYRIGHT OFFICE

+ + + + +

COPYRIGHT ARBITRATION ROYALTY PANEL

+ + + + +

In the matter of:

Digital Performance Right in Sound Recording and Ephemeral
RecordingDocket No.
2000-9CARP DTRA
1 & 2CARP Hearing Room
LM-414
Library of Congress
Madison Building
101 Independence Ave, SE
Washington, D.C.Monday
July 30, 2001

The above-entitled matter came on for hearing, pursuant to notice, at 1:00 p.m.

BEFORE

THE HONORABLE ERIC E. VAN LOON	Chairman
THE HONORABLE JEFFREY S. GULIN	Chairman
THE HONORABLE CURTIS E. von KANN	Arbitrator

NEAL R. GROSSCOURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

ORIGINAL

APPEARANCES:

On Behalf of Clear Channel Communications, Inc.,
National Religious Broadcasters Music License Committee, and Salem Communications Corporation

BRUCE G. JOSEPH, ESQ. of: Wiley, Rein & Fielding 1776 K Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 719-4913
(202) 719-7000

On Behalf of American Federation of Television and Radio Artists

ARTHUR J. LEVINE, ESQ. of: Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner, LLP
1300 I Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20005-3315
(202) 408-4032

On Behalf of the Association for Independent Music

JACQUES M. RIMOKH, ESQ.
BARRY I. SLOTNIK, ESQ.
of: Bingham Dana, L.L.P.
885 Third Avenue
New York, New York 10022-4689
(212) 207-1770

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

APPEARANCES: (Cont'd)

On Behalf of BET.com; CBS Broadcasting, Inc.; Comedy Central; Coollink Broadcast Network; Echo Networks, Inc.; Everstream, Inc.; Incanta, Inc.; Launch Media, Inc.; Listen.com; Live365.com; MTVi Group, LLC; MusicMatch, Inc.; MyPlay, Inc.; NetRadio Corporation; Radioactive Media Partners, Inc.; RadioWave.com, Inc.; Entercom Communications Corporation; Spinner Networks, Inc.; Susquehanna Radio Corp.; Univision Online; Westwind Media.com, Inc.; and Xact Radio Network, LLC

R. BRUCE RICH, ESQ.

KENNETH L. STEINTHAL, ESQ.

MARK A. JACOBY, ESQ.

of: Weil, Gotshal & Manges, LLP
767 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York 10153
(212) 310-8622

On Behalf of AEI Music Network; DMX Music, Inc.

SANDRA M. AISTARS, ESQ.

DAVID R. BERZ, ESQ.

of: Weil, Gotshal & Manges, LLP
1615 L Street, N.W.
Suite 700
Washington, D.C. 20036
(202) 682-7272

On Behalf of the Recording Industry Association of America, Inc.

JOHN A. FREEDMAN, ESQ.

ROBERT ALAN GARRETT, ESQ.

BRAD R. NEWBERG, ESQ.

RONALD A. SCHECHTER, ESQ.

JULE L. SIGALL, ESQ.

CHRISTOPHER WINTERS, ESQ.

MICHELE J. WOODS, ESQ.

of: Arnold & Porter
555 Twelfth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20004
(202) 942-5719

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

APPEARANCES: (Cont'd)On Behalf of National Public Radio:

DENISE LEARY, ESQ.
of: National Public Radio, Inc.
635 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20001
(202) 513-2049

On Behalf of American Federation of Musicians of the United States and Canada:

PATRICIA POLACH, ESQ.
of: Bredhoff & Kaiser, P.L.L.C.
805 15th Street, N.W.
Suite 1000
Washington, D.C. 20005
(202) 842-2600

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

C-O-N-T-E-N-T-S

Opening StatementsOn Behalf of the Recording Industry Association of America, Inc.

Mr. Garrett 30

On Behalf of the Association for Independent Music

Mr. Rimokh 97

On Behalf of American Federation of Television and Radio Artists

Mr. Levine 99

On Behalf of American Federation of Musicians of the United States and Canada:

Ms. Polach 105

On Behalf of AEI Music Network; DMX Music, Inc.

Mr. Rich 114

Mr. Joseph 143

Mr. Berz 173

On Behalf of BET.com; CBS Broadcasting, Inc. et al.

Mr. Steinthal 185

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

P-R-O-C-E-E-D-I-N-G-S

(1:08 p.m.)

MR. ROBERTS: Good afternoon, everyone.

My name is Bill Roberts. I am senior attorney for Compulsory Licenses here at the Copyright Office. And on behalf of myself, Tanya Sandros in the back, Rita Ginnfredda, and our General Counsel David Carson and the Register of Copyrights, Marybeth Peters, and the Librarian of Congress, Dr. James Billington, I welcome all of you to the beginning of our proceeding to decide rates and terms for the digital performance right in sound recordings and ephemeral recordings.

Today begins the 180-day arbitration period, and on or before the 28th of January of next year, our arbitrators will deliver to us, the Copyright Office and the Library, a written decision detailing their findings of fact and conclusions of law and the terms and rates that they have deemed appropriate to assess.

At that point in time, the Register of Copyrights will review the decision and make her recommendation to the Librarian of Congress. And the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Librarian will publish his final decision. That will 2 be either 60 days after the 28th of January if the 3 Librarian accepts the Panel's decisions. If he 4 determines that he needs to reject the Panel's 5 decision and substitute his own decision, then it will 6 be 90 days after the issuance of the decision on or 7 before the 28th of January.

8 I'd like to introduce to you our 9 arbitrators. Serving as our Chairperson, from Boston, 10 Massachusetts, Eric Van Loon. Sitting to his 11 immediate left, from Baltimore, Maryland, Jeffrey
12 Gulin, and to Eric's right, from Washington, D.C., 13 Curtis von Kann. These will be our arbitrators for 14 the next 180 days.

15 I guess somewhat regret to inform all of 16 you that there -- before opening statements can begin 17 today there is a matter of resolving certain material 18 that's going to be presented in these opening 19 statements that is being deemed by at least one side 20 to be confidential. And that means I am going to have 21 to ask all of you in the room who are not associated 22 with Counsel on the one side for broadcasters and

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 webcasters or the Recording Industry Association on 2 the other to please temporarily leave this room so 3 that Counsel may make their arguments and this 4 decision may be made on this material, at which point 5 you can return, and the arbitrators will begin this 6 proceeding with opening statements. So thank you very 7 much.

8 (Whereupon, the foregoing
9 matter went off the record at 10 1:11 p.m. resumed immediately
11 in Closed Session.)
12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21
22

1 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Well, good
2 afternoon, everyone, and welcome to this opening 3 public session of our CARP deliberations on rates and 4 terms for performance rights in digital recordings.
5 We are here in the early days of what is currently a 6 small industry of webcasting and broadcasting and are 7 looking forward to hearing from the parties evidence 8 and information about the state of the industry and 9 all of the rest.

10 The Arbitration Panel, in looking at a 11 variety of different stars or touchstones for things 12 that might guide us, found a royalty decision written 13 by Judge Learned Hand more than 50 years ago, in which 14 he wrote that "The whole notion of a reasonable 15 royalty it's a device in the aid of justice." He 16 said, "It's a device by which that which is really 17 incalculable shall be approximated." So we're guided, 18 in part, by his point of view and in much more 19 significant measure by what we will be hearing from 20 you.

21 It's important for us to announce and 22 explain briefly to the audience, now that we're back

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 on the record, that the hearings of the CARP Panel, 2 Arbitration Panel, are open, public hearings for the 3 largest extent. But that there is a provision for 4 closed meetings under certain circumstances under 5 Section 251.13 and 14 of the Federal Regulations. And 6 that in order to consider a motion and deliberate on 7 a motion, the Panel has voted three to -- unanimously 8 that it was appropriate to close our opening statement 9 -- or opening session briefly under 251.13(d), 10 relating to matters that arguably involve privileged 11 or confidential trade secrets or financial 12 information. And so that's the legal basis for 13 closing that. And I'm informed that for a short part 14 of the opening statements later this afternoon, there 15 will be similarly a closed session to address this.

16 Stemming from previous discussion with the 17 parties here a month ago in a procedural hearing or 18 meeting, it's been determined that each side will have 19 approximately up to two hours to make their opening 20 presentation. That will be divided, in some cases, 21 among various spokesperson for the different sides.
22 And we'll be hearing, we understand, first from the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 copyright owners and performers.

2 And in the aid of our reporter, we would 3 ask everyone to please identify yourself so we can 4 also get to know you better.

5 MR. GARRETT: Mr. Chairman, members of the 6 Panel, I'm Bob Garrett, along with my colleagues from 7 Arnold and Porter. We represent the Recording 8 Industry Association of America, RIAA. Good 9 afternoon, and thank you for holding this hearing in 10 the afternoon. It is one less day that I will spend 11 up in the Library of Congress' cafeteria over the next 12 seven weeks.

13 I put up some slides here and would like 14 to just pass out copies for the arbitrators and other 15 people in the room here for those who can't see it.

16 What I'd like to do during my opening 17 statement, Your Honors, is cover, basically five 18 topics. The first is the background and purpose of 19 this proceeding. The second is the statutory standard 20 that will guide your deliberations in this case.
21 Third, I'd like to compare the approach that we've 22 taken in our direct case with the approach that the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 webcasters have taken in their case.

2 Next, I'd like to discuss the rulings of 3 both another CARP and the Librarian in the 4 Subscription Services decision. That was the first 5 proceeding in which a CARP set royalty rates for a 6 digital performance right and sound recordings. And, 7 finally, I'd like to spend a little time just 8 comparing our rate with the rate that has been 9 proposed by the webcasters.

10 If you turn on your radio, conventional 11 radio, you'll probably get somewhere between three or 12 four, maybe as many as 20 or 30 different channels of 13 music depending where you're located in this country.
14 Depending upon the reception in that geographic area, 15 you can get more or fewer channels. But if you turn 16 on your computer and you go to the Internet, you can 17 receive literally thousands of channels of highly 18 themed, preprogrammed music, and that's true 19 regardless of where you are. And depending upon the 20 nature of your connection to the Internet, that music 21 may sound exactly like the CD that you play on your 22 stereo.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Now, for example, if you like jazz, and 2 you live here in the D.C. area, you might be able to 3 get two or three different local jazz stations just 4 off the air. But on the Internet, you can go to the 5 web sites of AM and FM radio stations from New 6 Orleans, Chicago, all over the country, and on many of 7 those web sites you're going to be able to hear 8 exactly the same music, the same jazz programming that 9 those stations offer over the air.

10 There are also web sites that you can 11 listen to jazz channels, and those -- you can listen 12 to music channels that are available only on the 13 Internet. For example, one of the parties in this 14 case, AOL, offers a music service known as 15 spinner.com. And Spinner has over 200 different 16 channels of preprogrammed music.

17 This slide here is from a page on the 18 Spinner web site. If you go to the menu on the left 19 and click on jazz and blues, the menu on the right 20 will pop up, and you can see you get a listing of 24 21 different categories of jazz and blues. You click on 22 any one of those categories and you can listen to

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 music from that category, one song after another, 24 2 hours a day, seven days a week.

3 Now, Spinner, of course, is but one
4 service that provides preprogrammed music solely over 5 its web site. There are many other such web sites 6 with additional categories and sub-categories of not 7 only jazz but all sorts of different types of music.

8 Now, these channels don't appear on web 9 sites by magic. There are entrepreneurs out there who 10 have put these channels on the web, and we call them 11 webcasters. Spinner is an example of a webcaster, and 12 likewise a radio station when it simulcasts a signal 13 over the Internet is a webcaster. Now, these 14 entrepreneurs are not compelled to use our recorded 15 music. They can choose from all sorts of different 16 content on which to build their businesses. But they 17 choose our sound recordings; in fact, they choose the 18 best of our sound recordings. And why? Because they 19 believe that those sound recordings will help attract 20 visitors to their web sites. And that's what their 21 businesses depend on -- attracting visitors to their 22 web sites.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Now, the recorded music on those channels
2 doesn't appear magically either. It exists only 3 because of the very significant efforts of both record 4 labels and recording artists. It exists because 5 hundreds of different record labels throughout this 6 country are willing to incur the substantial risks of 7 discovering, financing, and promoting recording 8 artists. And they exist because those artists have 9 the creative genius that is necessary to transform the 10 notes and lyrics that you find on a piece of paper 11 into a compelling performance that touches the 12 emotions of a diverse group of people worldwide.

13 And while the financial rewards can be 14 very great for a select group of sound recordings, the 15 cost of running our business are enormous. As you 16 will hear from one of our witnesses, the major record 17 labels alone have spent literally billions of dollars 18 creating the sound recordings that then form the basis 19 of the businesses that the webcasters engage in.

20 Now, we own the property right, the 21 copyright in hundreds of thousands of different sound 22 recordings. And a very fundamental right of property

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 ownership in this country is the right to insist that 2 others negotiate with the property owner before making 3 commercial use of their property. Now, we don't have 4 that right when it comes to the types of webcasting 5 services that are involved in this case here. And 6 that's because the law, specifically the Digital 7 Millennium Copyright Act, or DMCA, affords these 8 services a compulsory license.

9 Now, they can compel us to license them 10 all of our copyrighted sound recordings without having 11 to negotiate with us. All they've got to do is file 12 a piece of paper over here at the Copyright Office and 13 then they can transmit over the Internet hundreds of 14 thousands of sound recordings that cost billions of 15 dollars to create and to produce.

16 Now, we don't have control over the use of 17 our property, but we do have one very basic right, and 18 that is the right to receive the same level of 19 compensation that we would have received had we been 20 able to negotiate with the webcasters in a free 21 marketplace, absent the compulsory license.

22 And that brings us to why we are here

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 today and what it is that you must do. And very 2 simply, you must determine the level of compensation
3 that we would have received in a free marketplace 4 negotiation for the licenses at issue. Specifically, 5 the Panel must set rates and terms for three statutory 6 or compulsory licenses.

7 The first is the Section 114 license that 8 actually permits the webcasters to transmit or to 9 stream sound recordings over the Internet. And we 10 call this the webcasters performance license.
11 Secondly, Section 112 permits webcasters to make 12 multiple copies of those sound recordings. And those 13 copies are what the webcasters actually transmit over 14 the Internet. Now, a webcaster doesn't always need to 15 make multiple copies, but having those copies can make 16 its business much more efficient. And the license 17 that allows them to do that without our consent is the 18 112 ephemeral license, or the 112 webcaster ephemeral 19 license.

20 There's a third license that does not 21 directly involve webcasting but for which you must 22 also set rates and terms. And that license is also

1 found in Section 112, and it permits certain 2 background music services to make temporary copies of 3 sound recordings in order to transmit those recordings 4 to various business establishments. We call this the 5 business services or the business establishment 6 ephemeral license, and I'll discuss that briefly at 7 the end of my statement here.

8 You also must set rates and terms for two 9 periods of time: November 1998 to December 2000 and 10 January 20001 to December 20002. However, I think 11 it's worthy to note that neither side is offering a 12 rate proposal that distinguishes between these two 13 time periods.

14 That brings me to the statutory standard.
15 Initially, there was a dispute between us and the 16 webcasters over the standard that you are required to 17 apply in setting rates and terms in this proceeding.
18 The Copyright Office, however, in its July 16 order, 19 resolved that dispute. It provides you with guidance 20 that we believe is correct and that you must follow.

21 And let me emphasize a couple of points 22 about the standard. First, the standard you must

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 apply in setting Section 114 rates and terms is the 2 willing buyer/willing seller standard. The precise 3 language is shown in the next slide here. It says, 4 "The CARP shall establish rates and terms that most 5 clearly represent the rates and terms that would have 6 been negotiated in the marketplace between a willing 7 buyer and a willing seller.

8 Now, here's what the Copyright Office said
9 about that standard. It's on page 5 of its July 16 10 order. It said, "The statutory standard set forth in 11 Section 114(f)(2)(b) requires the Panel to determine 12 the rates that a willing seller and a willing buyer 13 would agree upon through voluntary negotiations in the 14 marketplace. And the Panel must use the willing 15 seller/willing buyer standard to set rates for all 16 non-interactive, non-subscription transmissions made 17 under Section 114 license, including those within 150
18 miles of the broadcaster's transmitter. That 150 mile 19 reference, we think, is significant, and I'll talk a 20 little bit more about that later.

21 But the most important point here is to 22 emphasize that that willing buyer/willing seller

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 standard is really the polestar that you must follow 2 in this proceeding. And it is a polestar that 3 emphasizes marketplace negotiations. This is 4 essentially a fair market value test, because fair 5 market value has traditionally been defined as what a 6 willing buyer and a willing seller would agree to in 7 a marketplace transaction. Now, that test is also, as 8 one of our witnesses will explain, the same test that 9 has historically been applied in other intellectual 10 property cases, primarily patent cases, to determine 11 a reasonable royalty.

12 Well, what does this mean for the 13 webcaster performance license? We'll tell you what we 14 think it means. We believe that your focus must be on 15 discerning the rates and terms that would result in 16 negotiations in a free market, absent the compulsory 17 license. We believe that you must replicate a 18 hypothetical negotiation where the willing seller is 19 the record industry, and the willing buyers are 20 webcasters. That negotiation must be for the non-21 inclusive right to transmit digitally all copyrighted 22 sound recordings over the Internet and in a manner

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 You must consider any evidence which shows how a 2 willing buyer and a willing seller would value the 3 licenses at issue here.

4 There's a third point to emphasize about 5 Section 114, and that is that the structure of Section 6 114 is very similar to the structure of Section 119, 7 which is the satellite carrier compulsory license.
8 This next slide quotes the relevant language from 9 those two sections. And the Copyright Office also 10 noted in its July 16 order, it said that the Panel 11 should look to the Librarian's Section 119 decision 12 for further guidance implementing the willing 13 buyer/willing seller standard. I would add that you 14 should also look at the CARP report, and that the 15 Librarian affirmed, in the Section 119 proceeding, and 16 I think you'll hear more about that as we go through 17 this proceeding.

18 Finally, let's take a look at Section 112.
19 Like Section 114, Section 112 also contains a willing 20 buyer/willing seller standard. It says that the CARP 21 shall establish rates that most clearly represent the 22 fees that would have negotiated in the marketplace

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 that effectively provides each consumer with access to 2 literally thousands of narrowly tailored channels of 3 music.

4 The second point I want to emphasize about 5 Section 114 relates to the following language. This 6 language identifies certain types of evidence that you 7 must consider in this proceeding -- evidence of 8 promotion, substitution, relative contributions.
9 Here's what the Copyright Office said about this 10 provision. The exact language is on the slide. I 11 think what it makes clear is that promotion, 12 substitution, relative contribution, these are not 13 separate standards. They're not separate standards 14 that are co-equal with the willing buyer/willing 15 seller standard. They're simply types of evidence 16 that you must consider. And you must consider them 17 only to the extent that they shed light on what it is 18 that a willing buyer and a willing seller would 19 negotiate in a free marketplace.

20 Now, furthermore, promotion, substitution, 21 relative contributions are not the only types of 22 evidence that you must consider in this proceeding.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 between a willing buyer and a willing seller. The 2 language is actually slightly different than Section 3 112, but the key is that it still refers to the 4 willing buyer and the willing seller.

5 And here's what the Copyright Office said
6 on page 5 of its July 16 order about 112. It said, 7 "The standard for setting royalty fees for the Section 8 112 license is identical to the standard used to set 9 rates for the Section 114 license. Now, rates should 10 be set for the making of ephemeral recordings after 11 full consideration of all evidence that relates to the 12 marketplace value of these reproductions."

13 Now, what does this mean? One example 14 I'll give you, webcasters in this case argue that the 15 Section 112 rate should effectively be zero. The 16 business services also have said that they should pay 17 nothing, although they then go on to offer what we 18 consider to be a token fee. And what these parties 19 will have to show is that in the free market, absent
20 the compulsory license, the Section 112 rates 21 essentially have no value, that record companies would 22 give these rights away for free. Now, we don't

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 believe the record is going to show that. We believe 2 the Section 112 rights are valuable rights, and that 3 those who want them must pay a marketplace price for 4 them.

5 Let me move now to the next section of my 6 opening statement, which is to talk a little bit about 7 the different direct cases that each side has put in.
8 As you know, Section 114 directs the parties to enter 9 into voluntary negotiations over rates and terms.
10 Section 112 contains a similar directive. And 11 pursuant to that directive, RIAA established a 12 Negotiating Committee that was comprised of members of 13 a number of different record companies. And this 14 included each of the major record companies, which 15 collectively account for about 85 percent of the 16 market.

17 And several of the members of that 18 Negotiating Committee will testify before you over the 19 next couple of weeks. These are the individuals at 20 the record labels who have substantial experience 21 negotiating licensing agreements for both new media 22 and in many cases traditional media.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 The Committee originally sought to 2 negotiate with the trade association that represents 3 the webcasters, DMA, or the Digital Media Association.
4 DMA, however, told RIAA that DMA could not negotiate
5 on behalf of its members. It told RIAA to negotiate
6 with webcasters individually, and that's what RIAA
7 did. It began what has become a very arduous, time 8 consuming, and costly task of going to individual 9 webcasters and attempting to negotiate deals with them 10 for the Section 112 and 114 rates.

11 Its objective in these negotiations was to 12 make deals, deals that the parties would consider to 13 be fair and reasonable and that would ultimately form 14 the basis of an industry-wide settlement, and that 15 would avoid the need for this very hearing. Now, 16 obviously, we were not successful in avoiding this 17 hearing, but we have been successful in negotiating a 18 number of different agreements.

19 Now, in some cases, those negotiations 20 were completed in a matter of a few days or a few 21 weeks. In other cases, they stretched over months.
22 In the end, however, we were able to reach agreement

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 with several webcasters as to what are fair and 2 reasonable rates and terms for the Section 112 and 114
3 licenses. And in the process, I think we learned a 4 good deal about what it takes to be a willing buyer 5 and a willing seller in this marketplace.

6 Now, when we filed our direct case, we had 7 25 agreements. Since then we have entered into a 8 licensing agreement with one other webcaster in this 9 proceeding. And we continue to negotiate with others 10 who are willing to negotiate with us. We've included 11 all 25 of the agreements in the record and will ask 12 for permission to include the 26th as well. The next 13 slide here identifies 26 licensees and the dates of 14 the agreements that we reached with them.

15 Our position, bottom line, is that the 16 rates and terms in these 26 agreements provide the 17 best evidence of the willing buyer/willing seller 18 rates and terms that the CARP must adopt in this 19 proceeding. Why do we say that? Well, primarily 20 because the RIAA agreements involve the same parties, 21 the same right, the same works, the same medium, the 22 same programming as the marketplace that the Panel

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 here must replicate.

2 We're not saying that the Panel ought to 3 adopt the rates and terms in these 26 agreements 4 simply because they do involve the same parties, the 5 same right, the same medium, the same programming.
6 The bulk of our case is going to be devoted to 7 explaining why those rates and terms, the ones that we 8 have negotiated in the marketplace, are consistent 9 with what is going on in that marketplace, in 10 particular, what the new and traditional media are 11 spending for analogous rights, what we are spending to 12 create copyrighted works, and what the webcasters 13 themselves are spending on other parts of their 14 businesses.

15 I think to determine willing buyer/willing 16 seller rates, you need to understand the record 17 business, and you need to understand the webcasting 18 business. Why? Simply because those are the two 19 willing buyers and the willing sellers in the 20 negotiation that you must replicate. I think you've 21 also got to understand the music publishing business 22 and how that business differs from the record

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 business, and that's because the webcasters base their 2 case on the flawed notion that these two businesses, 3 the record business and the music publishing business, 4 are interchangeable, that they would charge 5 essentially the same marketplace rates for the 6 separate rights that they own.

7 And what our case is really intended to do 8 is to help you understand our business, the 9 webcasters' business, the music publishing business, 10 and, most importantly, how we license both new and 11 traditional media rights for sound recordings. A 12 substantial portion of our case is going to be devoted 13 to describing agreements that not only RIAA has 14 negotiated but that our individual companies have 15 negotiated involving analogous rights outside the 16 statutory license to both new and traditional medium.

17 And we're going to present that case
18 through 17 witnesses. The majority of our witnesses 19 have a substantial amount of experience in the record 20 industry. Many of these witnesses also have a 21 significant amount of experience in dealing with 22 webcasters and new media licensing. Others have

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 experience in the music publishing business.

2 We have laid out in our pre-hearing
3 memorandum a brief summary of the witnesses'
4 testimony. I'm not going to repeat that summary here, 5 but I do just want to highlight the testimony of three 6 of our experts. One is Robert Yerman of LECG. Mr.
7 Yerman has frequently been called upon to value 8 different types of intellectual property using the 9 same willing buyer/willing seller test that you must 10 apply here. He's going to discuss with you how that 11 willing buyer/willing seller test has been applied in 12 other intellectual property cases, and he will show 13 how that test would be applied here, explaining in 14 particular the importance of negotiated agreements 15 involving the same works and the same rights.

16 Another of our experts is Dr. Thomas Nagle 17 of the Strategic Pricing Group. Dr. Nagle is a 18 nationally recognized expert on pricing strategies.
19 He and his consultant firm, SPG, are frequently called 20 upon by clients in a wide variety of fields to help 21 determine fair market value prices. And not for 22 purposes of litigation but for purpose of running

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 their own businesses on a day-to-day basis. Using the 2 economic analysis that Dr. Nagle and SPG traditionally 3 apply in assisting these other businesses, he will 4 show that the rates proposed by RIAA, in this case, 5 are within the range of fair market value rates.

6 Our third expert is Dr. Steven Wildman of 7 Michigan State. He's testified previously in our CARP 8 proceedings concerning benchmarks for rate setting.
9 He testified for the Recording Industry Association in 10 the subscription services proceeding, and he's also 11 testified for the broadcasters in other proceedings 12 before the CARP and the Copyright Royalty Tribunal.
13 What his testimony will show is that musical work 14 rates are not appropriate benchmarks for setting sound 15 recording rates. And he's also going to talk about 16 why the decision in the 1997 subscription services 17 proceeding is not an appropriate benchmark in this 18 proceeding.

19 And as you will see, there are some very 20 fundamental differences between our case and the case
21 that the webcasters are putting on. The centerpiece 22 of the webcasters' case is a study submitted by Adam

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Jaffe. And it's important that you understand exactly 2 where and how Dr. Jaffe calculates his proposed 3 royalties. This study does not look at a single 4 agreement involving sound recordings or a single 5 agreement involving record companies or a single 6 agreement involving webcasters. His study is based on 7 what certain over-the-air radio stations supposedly 8 pay to ASCAP, BMI, and SESAC, pursuant to certain 9 agreements. To put it in other terms, the webcasters 10 are also basing their case on agreements, but their 11 agreements are very different than the agreement we 12 believe that you must replicate here.

13 And remember your statutory mandate. You 14 must adopt rates and terms that most clearly reflect 15 or represent the rates and terms that a willing buyer 16 and a willing seller would agree to in a free 17 marketplace. Now, we don't believe that that means 18 any buyer and any seller, for any rights involving any 19 works and any medium and any programming. Rather, we 20 believe that your focus must be on discerning the 21 rates and terms that would result from negotiations in 22 a free market, absent the compulsory license, that you

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 must replicate a hypothetical negotiation where the 2 willing seller is the record company, and the willing 3 buyers are the webcasters, and that that negotiation
4 must be for the non-inclusive right to transmit 5 digitally all copyrighted sound recordings over the 6 Internet and in a manner that effectively provides 7 each consumer access to literally thousands of highly 8 themed music channels.

9 Professor Jaffe does not look at 10 agreements that were negotiated in a free market, 11 absent compulsory licensing. He looks at agreements 12 that were negotiated, pursuant to a consent decree and 13 subject to rate court supervision. He does not look 14 at the license fees that the record industry charges.
15 Instead he looks at the license fees that the music 16 publishers charge. And he doesn't look at what 17 webcasters pay; he looks at what a committee comprised 18 of radio station representatives agreed to pay. And 19 he doesn't look at what's paid for sound recordings; 20 he looks at what's paid for musical works. He does 21 not look at what's paid for digital rights, but he 22 looks at what was paid for analog rights.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 And he does not look at what is paid for 2 rights to transmit across the United States over the 3 Internet, but for the right to transmit on local, 4 over-the-air radio stations with limited geographic 5 reach. And, finally, he does not look at what is paid 6 for rights which permit a consumer to receive 7 literally thousands of channels of highly themed 8 music, but rather for rights which permit consumers to 9 receive a relative handful of generalized radio 10 stations.

11 And these are all critical differences
12 between the agreements on which Professor Jaffe relies 13 and the agreements on which we rely. More 14 importantly, these are all critical differences from 15 the negotiations that you, the Panel, must replicate.
16 And the significance of each of these differences will 17 become even more apparent as we go through the next 18 couple of weeks of testimony.

19 Let me also note that NPR has submitted a 20 separate study, but it suffers from exactly the same 21 flaws as the webcasters'. It's based solely on the 22 musical work fees that public broadcasters pay ASCAP,

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 BMI, and SESAC, pursuant to a prior decision of a
2 Copyright Arbitration Royalty Panel.

3 Now, you will hear the webcasters argue 4 that our agreements do not reflect the willing 5 buyer/willing seller test, that they do not reflect a 6 fair market value. In one respect, I agree with them, 7 although not for a reason that I expect they will say.
8 None of the RIAA agreements was negotiated in a truly 9 free marketplace. They were negotiated against the 10 backdrop of a compulsory license. Now, in true 11 marketplace negotiations, the buyer must reach an 12 agreement with the seller or else that buyer will not 13 have access to the seller's product.

14 Now, that's not the situation here. The 15 record labels cannot withhold their sound recordings 16 from webcasters who want to use them in accordance 17 with the DMCA. As long as the webcaster complies with 18 the statutory requirements, we are compelled to 19 license our sound recordings to them. And if the 20 webcaster refuses to pay what we consider to be a fair 21 and reasonable royalty rate, we've got to come to you.
22 And all the while that this proceeding goes on, they

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 can continue to use the sound recordings as long as 2 they do so in accordance with the DMCA.

3 Now, as the Librarian said in the most 4 recent 1-18 CARP proceeding, it is difficult to 5 understand how a license negotiated under the 6 constraints of a compulsory license, where the 7 licensor has no choice but to license, could truly 8 reflect fair market value.

9 Now, as this suggests, it is normally the 10 copyright user in a CARP proceeding, and not the 11 copyright owner, who points to the rates and voluntary 12 agreements. That was, of course, the case in the last 13 1-18 proceeding. And the reason is because they know, 14 the copyright user knows, that they have the advantage 15 where the copyright owner is effectively forced to 16 sell.

17 Now, think about this from the viewpoint
18 of the webcaster. He doesn't need to negotiate before 19 using our sound recordings. All he has to do is file 20 a piece of paper with the Copyright Office. If he 21 negotiates an agreement with us, he's got to begin 22 paying us. But if he doesn't enter into an agreement,

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 there's no need for him to make any royalty payments, 2 not even interim payments, until the rates have been 3 set, although he will then be required to make back 4 payments, but that won't be until mid-2002 or about 5 three and a half years after the DMCA went into 6 effect.

7 If a webcaster doesn't agree with us, he has no 8 obligation to participate in these proceedings or even 9 to assume any of the cost of these proceedings. In 10 short, there are many disincentives for webcasters to 11 negotiate with us, and notwithstanding those 12 disincentives we were able to successfully negotiate 13 26 agreements.

14 Now, Section 112 specifically says that 15 you may consider rates and terms in voluntary 16 agreements. Section 114 says that you may consider 17 rates and terms in voluntary agreements with 18 comparable types of digital audio transmission 19 services and for comparable circumstances. The 20 webcasters' focus on that comparability language 21 that's in Section 114, not in Section 112, they argue 22 that all licensees are not comparable to those for

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 whom you must set royalty rates, because some of them 2 are not operational or because they were motivated by 3 special considerations to deal with us.

4 Well, the facts are that 13 of our 5 licensees are operational, six have not yet commenced 6 operation, and seven have either been acquired or are 7 no longer operational. And we believe that this is 8 very much reflective of the universe of webcasters.
9 Indeed, the record will show that as of the beginning 10 of this year there were about 750 Internet-only 11 webcasters who had signed for the Section 114 license.
12 And of that number, more than 500 were not in 13 operation at that time. The record will show that 14 significant consolidation in the industry is not only 15 inevitable but is already going on, just as it has 16 happened in other industries.

17 It is also a fact that many of our 18 licensees are very small, some are medium sized, and 19 one is very large. Again, we believe that the record 20 will show that our licensees are very much a cross 21 section of the webcasters for which you must set rates 22 and terms. The industry itself is populated by a few

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 large webcasters, a number of medium sized webcasters, 2 and many small webcasters.

3 And, furthermore, when you consider the 4 issue of comparability in this case, consider one 5 other thing as well: The webcasters' case is based on 6 the notion that record labels are interchangeable with 7 music publishers, that sound recordings are 8 interchangeable with musical works, that the Internet 9 is interchangeable with over-the-air radio, and that 10 digital rights are interchangeable with analog rights.
11 Now, I don't believe that they're going to meet their 12 burden of establishing that any of these things 13 satisfies the test of comparability that they 14 themselves advocate.

15 Now, when you read the webcasters' case, 16 you can't help but to come away with one very definite 17 impression: The only reason these guys are in 18 business is to help us sell records. And it's true 19 that many of our record labels have very good working 20 relationships with many webcasters, including some of 21 those in this proceeding. And we expect that those 22 relationships will continue. But those relationships

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 typically involve target promotions of particular 2 recordings that fit within our overall business 3 strategies, where we have control over exactly what it 4 is that is being done.

5 Now, this is very different from what it 6 is involved in this proceeding where a webcaster has 7 the unilateral right without our consent or even our 8 input to pick and choose from any and all of hundreds 9 of thousands of sound recordings and then to transmit 10 those sound recordings over the Internet whenever and 11 however they choose so long as they comply with the 12 requirements of the DMCA.

13 Now, virtually every commercial operation 14 who uses our recorded music, legitimately or 15 illegitimately, claims that its use is promotional.
16 And I think we would agree that many uses of our music 17 are promotional, at least to some degree. But that 18 does not mean that they have the right to make use of 19 that music by paying us some token amount, whatever is 20 left after they pay all of their other expenses.

21 Now, as I've explained, we're going to be 22 relying on this case primarily on agreements that the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 recording industry associations negotiated and that 2 individual record labels have negotiated. I think 3 what you will see is that in all of these cases the 4 factor of promotion has been taken into account. We 5 have agreements, for example, for music videos. Music 6 videos are created for the primary purpose of 7 promoting the sale of sound recordings, but it doesn't 8 mean that we give companies who want to build their 9 business on those music videos the right to use those 10 videos for free. And we'll be discussing later today, 11 as well as throughout this proceeding, exactly what it 12 is that we received in the marketplace for not only 13 music video agreements but also other types of rights 14 that are analogous to the rights involved in this 15 proceeding.

16 Let me also just briefly mention our case
17 concerning the business establishment, Section 112, 18 license. Now, you walk into a store, like a Gap, and 19 you may hear music in the background. These services 20 provide that music to the Gap and other stores like 21 them for a fee. Under the law, these services are 22 exempt from paying us a performance royalty, but they

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 may and must pay us for any copies they make of our 2 recordings in order to provide this service. And 3 certain of that copying is subject to the statutory 4 licensing provisions in Section 112.

5 And this part of the case I think is 6 complicated somewhat for the fact that the parties do 7 not agree on what Section 112 actually covers. We 8 filed a motion with the Copyright Office asking for 9 clarification and explained what we thought was 10 covered. DMX and AEI are the only two business 11 establishment services in this proceeding, and 12 actually it's only one since AEI is now owned by DMX.
13 They opposed the motion for clarification without 14 saying precisely what it is that they thought was 15 covered. The Office, in its July 16 order, chose not 16 to afford any guidance of precisely what is covered by 17 Section 112. Instead it told the Panel to set rates 18 and terms for everything.

19 Our position here is the same as it is 20 with the webcasters. For years, record labels have 21 entered into negotiated agreements with DMX, AEI, and 22 other business establishment services. And those

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 agreements set rates and terms for the copying of our 2 recordings by those services. And we believe that 3 under the willing buyer/willing seller standard, the 4 rates and terms you set for the Section 112 license 5 should be consistent with the rates and terms that we 6 have negotiated in those agreements. And we will be 7 presenting witnesses to describe those agreements.
8 And, indeed, we've put a number of them into the 9 record here as well.

10 Now, as you know, this is the first 11 proceeding in which a CARP must set rates for the 12 ephemeral recording licenses. However, it's not the 13 first proceeding in which the CARP must set rates for 14 a digital performance right in sound recordings. In 15 1997, another CARP conducted a proceeding to determine 16 that royalty that certain subscription music services 17 must pay. And these are the services that provide 18 music programming over cable television or DBS, or 19 Direct Broadcast Satellite, systems.

20 We requested a rate of 41.5 percent, which 21 was the average of what other cable programming 22 services were paying for their copyrighted

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 programming. The CARP, however, adopted a rate of 2 five percent. And while the Librarian found that the 3 CARP had acted arbitrarily in a number of respects, it 4 increased the rate to only 6.5 percent.

5 Now, while we respectfully disagree with 6 the decision in the subscription services proceeding, 7 we have tried to respond in several ways that are 8 relevant to this proceeding. First, and perhaps most 9 importantly, we successfully urged Congress to adopt 10 a different standard for setting the webcaster rates.
11 The original standard required the CARP in the 12 subscription services proceeding to set rates and 13 terms that achieved certain statutory objectives in 14 Section 801(b)(1).

15 And this slide will show what those 16 objectives are. Both the CARP and the Librarian 17 construed those objectives to permit a below market 18 subscription services rate. And that construction of 19 the statute was then affirmed by the D.C. Circuit.
20 And when Congress considered extending compulsory 21 licensing to webcasters, the quid pro quo that we 22 sought was a fair market value standard.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 You take a look at who's on the other side 2 of the room here. You have AOL, you have Viacom, who 3 owns MTV, who owns Infinity, who has ownership 4 interest in BET, the Comedy Central, all of whom will 5 be testifying before you here. You have Clear 6 Channel, one of the largest -- the largest broadcaster 7 in the United States here. Our view was that our 8 industry should not have to subsidize the likes of AOL 9 and Viacom and Clear Channel. We should not have to 10 subsidize them with below market rates, and Congress 11 agreed with that. It replaced the Section 801(b)(1) 12 objectives with the willing buyer/willing seller 13 standard.

14 The Copyright Office has made clear in its 15 July 16 order that that willing buyer/willing seller 16 standard that you must apply is very different from 17 the standard applicable to subscription services. As 18 the Office explained on page 1 of that order, Section 19 114 contains two separate and distinct standards for 20 setting rates and terms.

21 Second point to note about the 22 subscription services proceeding is that the CARP in

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 that proceeding rejected our reliance upon licensees
2 paid by cable networks, and that was what the 41.5 3 percent was based on. It said that these fees were 4 paid pursuant to agreements that involve different 5 parties, different works, and different rights than 6 the ones that were at issue in that case.

7 Furthermore, the CARP considered the best 8 benchmark to be a single agreement that three of our 9 companies had entered into with one subscription 10 service, even though we had entered into that 11 agreement at a time when we had no performance right 12 at all. The Librarian said that the agreement was not 13 a good benchmark, primarily because of the fact that 14 it had been negotiated at a time when there was no 15 performance right in sound recordings. Nevertheless, 16 the Librarian used the agreement in setting its rate, 17 and in fact the ultimate rate in that proceeding is 18 very close to the rate that was in the one agreement 19 that was the central focus of that original 20 proceeding.

21 We learned from that decision and from 22 that proceeding, and we've sought to address points

1 that were expressed by the CARP and the Librarian in 2 that case. And that's why we are relying here on 3 agreements that involve the same parties, the same 4 works, the same rights that would be involved in the 5 negotiation that you must replicate.

6 Third point that I want to make about the 7 subscription services proceeding. The Librarian uses 8 a benchmark in that proceeding: The royalty that 9 subscription services paid for musical works, even 10 though the parties had actually paid little attention 11 to musical works before the CARP. The Copyright 12 Office, in its July 18 order, has made clear that you 13 are not required to use that same benchmark here.
14 Rather, you must decide on the basis of the record 15 before you whether it makes sense to use musical works 16 as a benchmark for studying the webcasters' royalty.
17 And it's the burden of the webcasters to establish 18 that musical work rates are an appropriate benchmark.

19 Again, we have sought to address the 20 points made by the Library and the subscription 21 services proceeding. We believe that the record here 22 will show that musical work fees, and particularly

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 musical work fees paid by over-the-air broadcasters, 2 is not an appropriate benchmark.

3 Let me move to the last topic that I 4 wanted to discuss with the Panel here, and that's the 5 rates that we propose and the rates that the 6 webcasters have proposed. The differences between us 7 and the webcasters are not merely theoretical. They 8 lead, as you might suspect, to some very different 9 royalty rates. Now this is evident if you compare our 10 proposed Section 114 rates with the webcasters' 11 proposed rates. And the following slide shows the 12 rates proposed by both parties here.

13 A couple of things to note. We would 14 afford the webcasters an option. They could either 15 choose from a percent of revenues or a per-performance 16 metric, whichever they chose, presumably would be 17 whatever one gave them the lower royalty. Our 18 percent-of-revenue option is 15 percent of the 19 revenues attributable to the webcasters' transmission 20 of our sound recording, subject to a minimum fee.
21 Webcasters don't have a percent-of-revenue option, 22 even though that's the way the radio stations, on

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 which Professor Jaffe relies, actually pay their 2 royalties, as a percent of revenues.

3 Under our per-performance option, the 4 webcaster would pay four-tenths of a cent each time 5 one person listened to one song. For example, if I 6 listen to ten songs on AOL's Spinner, Spinner would 7 owe a royalty of four cents -- ten times 0.04. We 8 have a slightly higher rate for what we call a B-to-B, 9 or business-to-business, service; we also call it a 10 syndicator. This is someone who provides its service 11 to other web sites, rather than directly to consumers 12 and usually charges a fee to that other service 13 running the web site. There would also be a minimum 14 payment of $5,000 if you chose that per-performance 15 option.

16 The webcasters also have a per-performance 17 rate, but it would apply only to non-music-intensive 18 webcasters. As you can see just by comparing the 19 numbers on the left and the right hand side, their 20 per-performance royalty is approximately one-thirtieth 21 of our per-performance rate. The webcasters' 22 principal rate proposal is based on what they call

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 aggregate tuning hours. Under that approach, the 2 webcaster would pay 15 one-hundredths of a cent for 3 each hour that someone listens to its service, 4 regardless of how many songs they may listen to during 5 that hour. As you will hear, there can be a very 6 significant difference in the number of recordings per 7 hour, and that ATH approach does not take account of 8 those differences.

9 The webcasters want every webcast of a 10 radio station within 150 miles to be free. We don't 11 draw any distinctions between whether or not those 12 transmissions are within or outside 150 miles. This 13 is an issue that has its origins in other language in 14 the statute that you'll hear more about as we go 15 through this proceeding.

16 But going back to my earlier discussion of 17 the Copyright Office's July 16 order, what the 18 webcasters must show here is that the willing buyer 19 and the willing seller would agree to a price of zero 20 for those retransmissions. We don't think that the 21 evidence that you will receive when fairly considered 22 will show that the fair market value of those

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 retransmissions is zero.

2 The chart here doesn't include the Section 3 112 rates. This is somewhat of a moot point since the 4 webcasters say they want a zero Section 112 rate.
5 What we are seeking is a rate that is ten percent of 6 whatever it is that is paid pursuant to the per-7 performance or the percent-of-revenues rates. During 8 the hearing, we'll talk more about the details of each 9 of these rates proposals.

10 At this point, what I want to do is show 11 you how the different rate proposals compare to the 12 level of royalties that have actually been negotiated, 13 not only by the Recording Industry Association but 14 also by individual record labels for analogous rights.
15 The individual record labels have entered into a 16 number of deals with new media companies that transmit 17 sound recordings or music videos over the Internet.
18 We have placed 23 such agreements in the record and 19 have sought leave to add an additional 30 agreements 20 that are referred to in testimony of our witnesses.
21 That's all in addition to the 26 RIAA license 22 agreements. We've also included another 30 or so

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 agreements that a representative of traditional 2 licenses, such as compilations and background music 3 services. So all told, our witnesses will be 4 testifying concerning more than 100 specific licensing 5 agreements involving the use of sound recordings.

6 At this point, Your Honors, what I would 7 like to discuss more specifically with you the actual 8 rates that are found in those licensing agreements, 9 rates that are in not only the RIAA agreements but in 10 the individual agreements negotiated by our companies.
11 All of that information, as you know, has been marked 12 restricted in this proceeding. I also want to discuss 13 with you information that my friends from the 14 webcasters have marked as confidential and restricted 15 in this proceeding. And that's obviously a discussion 16 that I would very much like to have in public. I 17 cannot, because both sides here have requested 18 confidential treatment of that material. So at this 19 point, I would respectfully request that the only 20 persons to remain in the room are those who, under the 21 protective order, have been cleared to receive 22 restricted information.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Let me clarify.
2 The other speakers on behalf of the owners and 3 performers will not have restricted parts of their 4 opening presentation?

5 MR. GARRETT: And once I finish with the 6 restricted portion, Your Honor, I will be done with my 7 closing statement here. I don't think it will take 8 very long, but we could then bring everyone back in at 9 the conclusion of that statement.

10 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Under the same
11 basis that we announced and talked about earlier, a 12 unanimous agreement of the Panel, we ask all those 13 other than Counsel to step outside very briefly.

14 MS. LEARY: I would like a point of 15 clarification. Does any of the restricted information 16 contained in Mr. Garrett's statement apply to my 17 clients, Public Radio, in which case I would choose to 18 be here for that portion of his presentation.

19 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Mr. Garrett?

20 MR. GARRETT: Well, that raises a 21 difficult question, Your Honor. Obviously, all of the 22 information that we're presenting here we think has

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 applicability to NPR. The issue of Ms. Leary not 2 having access is one that we've been debating since 3 the beginnings of this proceeding. And, frankly, I 4 thought that we had resolved that issue by agreeing to 5 a certain amendment of the protective order, but that 6 agreement would not allow her to remain while we 7 discuss the material that is about to be presented.

8 MS. LEARY: I am representing NPR. I am
9 in-house Counsel for NPR, and that is why I cannot see 10 the restricted portions of the proceeding. My 11 question to Mr. Garrett is, is there any -- if there 12 is information that is relevant to my clients that is 13 restricted, I would like for some sort of a notice of 14 what that will be, and then we can act accordingly.

15 MR. VON KANN: I didn't quite understand.
16 Are you planning in the closed portion to say anything 17 about NPR?

18 MR. GARRETT: No.

19 MR. VON KANN: So it's only with respect 20 to the commercial licensees?

21 MR. GARRETT: Well, I'm only going to be 22 talking, Your Honor, about the specific royalty rates

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 that have been negotiated by RIAA and its individual 2 record companies, as well as certain financial 3 information that has been submitted by the webcasters.
4 Now, if Ms. Leary wants a concession from me that 5 nothing in those agreements applies to her clients and 6 that all of that information is wholly irrelevant to 7 her case, that's not a concession I'm about to make 8 here. But the issue that you should realize is that 9 from the very start we have discussed with Ms. Leary 10 here what her status in the case should be. She chose 11 not to get outside counsel. She chose to represent 12 NPR in-house. We all agreed to a protective order, 13 including Ms. Leary, that said that those who are in-14 house, whether they're counsel or non-counsel, would 15 not have access to any restricted information.

16 Furthermore, after that protective order
17 had been entered, Mr. Rich had come to me, on behalf 18 of Ms. Leary, and asked if I would waive a portion of 19 that order so that her experts would be able to get 20 access to restricted information. I said that I would 21 do so on the condition that that would then end the 22 issue of how we treated Ms. Leary. That condition was

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 then entered as part of an amendment to the protective 2 order.

3 MS. LEARY: If I may? I sought from the 4 very beginning to not have to have the restrictions
5 not apply to me as in-house Counsel. It isn't a 6 matter of not choosing to hire outside counsel; it's 7 a matter of cost for an entity as small as Public 8 Broadcasting. We believed it was important for us to 9 be in this proceeding, and I am representing us here 10 today for that very reason.

11 At the time the confidentiality order was 12 drafted, no one knew what anyone else was going to 13 designate as restricted or confidential. In-house 14 counsel would have had access to confidential 15 documents but not the restricted documents. As it 16 turned out, the RIAA marked all of their case 17 restricted. I only very unwillingly acceded to allow 18 my expert witness access to the restricted material, 19 because it was very clear from five weeks of talking 20 to Mr. Garrett and pointing out how awkward this was 21 going to be that we weren't going to get anywhere 22 without some sort of an accommodation. It is not one

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 that, by any way, I willingly accepted. It was just 2 the best of a very bad situation.

3 But I understood that materials that 4 pertained to NPR and Public Radio's case specifically 5 would be available to me. They were all restricted 6 materials that they filed in the proceeding in 7 response to my case I have been provided with. So if 8 there is specific information that this Panel is going 9 to hear with respect to Public Broadcasting, I would 10 submit that is a different situation than what we 11 contemplated, and I think I need to have some idea, 12 you know, kind of a Vaughn Index, if you will, of what 13 this material is going to cover.

14 MR. GULIN: Ms. Leary, if he covers
15 materials having to do with the 25 webcaster
16 agreements, I guess now 26 webcaster agreements, do 17 you consider that information that has something to do 18 with NPR or Public Radio?

19 MS. LEARY: If it's applied specifically, 20 Your Honor. If it's not, if it's just part of the 21 case they have already submitted and there is no 22 direct application to Public Radio, then I would

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 understand that to be governed by the terms of the 2 order we did enter into. So I'm asking, frankly, for 3 a point of clarification here. Is there anything
4 specifically referring to Public --

5 MR. GULIN: Well, I think he's already 6 indicated he's not specifically going to mention 7, Public Radio, but, again, anything that goes to his 8 benchmark might impact your particular --

9 MS. LEARY: Yes, we understand that.

10 MR. GULIN: -- case. So I guess at this 11 point you understand what the agreement was, and you 12 understand that the agreement was that as long as 13 Public Radio's not specifically mentioned, even though 14 what he's about to talk about may impact your case, 15 that you're not entitled to stay. You understood that 16 that was the agreement you entered into.

17 MS. LEARY: Yes. I'm pleased to say it's 18 not that way in the federal courts, only in CARP
19 proceedings.

20 MR. VON KANN: Can I raise -- this issue 21 sounds to me like it, a, might come up again with some 22 of the testimony as we go along, and it may merit some

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 more in-depth discussion. But I sort of hate to delay
2 -- I wonder if we can have an arrangement in which Ms.
3 Leary departs at this moment with the understanding 4 that if we revisit this in some fashion, that portion 5 of the transcript could be given to her so she won't 6 -- it's not like she's forever losing her moment to 7 hear it. And we can then, at an appropriate time when 8 it isn't delaying everything else, come back to this 9 issue if we need to.

10 MR. GARRETT: That is perfectly 11 acceptable.

12 MS. LEARY: Thank you, Your Honor.

13 MR. GARRETT: And I just want to make 14 clear, Your Honor, that what we're doing here is going 15 to be talking about rates that are contained in RIAA 16 agreements and in record label agreements, all of 17 which is already in the record, Your Honor. I'm not 18 talking about anything that isn't already in the 19 record and that hasn't been marked as restricted.

20 We're also going to be talking about 21 confidential financial information that the other side 22 has presented. I, of course, have no objection to her

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 listening to the information about the other side
2 here. I'm only concerned those rates.

3 MR. STEINTHAL: Let us be clear that we 4 have no problem treating Ms. Leary under the 5 protective order so that she would simply be bound by 6 the protective order as if she was outside counsel.
7 Our side of the table has no problem with deeming her 8 the equivalent of outside counsel for purposes of the 9 case.

10 MR. GULIN: Obviously that side does.

11 MR. STEINTHAL: Yes.

12 MS. LEARY: Well, it's acceptable. I 13 think it's important that we move on with this 14 portion, and we get back to the portion of opening, 15 but I appreciate --

16 MR. GARRETT: I guess my long-term concern
17 about this arrangement is it is at least conceivable 18 that this Panel does not accept your benchmark and 19 that you're going to need to make some other 20 arrangements in terms of a benchmark. And you would 21 not have had access to the information regarding their 22 benchmark, which may conceivably be the benchmark the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Panel adopts. So I'm not sure how you intend to deal 2 with that possibility without outside counsel of an 3 amendment of the existing agreement.

4 MS. LEARY: Well, the latter would be 5 preferable.

6 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: And it sounds as if 7 the proposal from Judge von Kann works in terms of 8 being able to allow us to move forward quickly today.

9 MS. LEARY: Absolutely.

10 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Okay. Thank you.
11 This is the appropriate time then for those who are 12 not part of the legal teams to absent themselves.

13 (Whereupon, the foregoing
14 matter went off the record at 15 2:35 p.m. and resumed in Closed 16 Session.)

17 18 19 20 21
22

1 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Well, it's our 2 understanding that the rest of the afternoon will 3 proceed with the benefit of a full public ear to the 4 proceedings. So we'll turn it over to you. Thanks.

5 MR. RIMOKH: Thank you, Your Honor. My 6 name is Jacques Rimokh, with the firm of Bingham Dana, 7 and I'm here representing the Association for 8 Independent Music, referred to as AFIM.

9 The Association for Independent Music is 10 a professional trade association dedicated to the 11 support and promotion of independent music of all 12 genres. Members include hundreds of independent 13 record companies, as well as wholesalers, distributors 14 and retailers. AFIM supports and wholly incorporates 15 the case of RIAA herein, but we believe it was 16 critical to participate in this proceeding, because it 17 is important for the Panel to consider the economics 18 of the hundreds of independent record companies and 19 the substantial impact that the rates established in 20 this proceeding will have on those small businesses 21 and the artists that they foster.

22 AFIM will be presenting the testimony of

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Gary Himmelfarb, who is the President of RAS Records.
2 RAS Records is a typical AFIM member and a typical 3 independent record company. It is operated by a small 4 staff of only five people, including Mr. Himmelfarb.
5 It has modest offices just outside D.C. It generally 6 releases between 12 and 15 albums per year, although 7 as you'll hear in the testimony, last year, due to 8 decreased sales, they could only release eight albums.

9 Like many of the independent record
10 companies, RAS Records specializes in a particular 11 musical genre. It's genre is reggae music, and it has 12 a catalog of approximately 300 recordings to which 13 it's adding to every year.

14 Mr. Himmelfarb's testimony will give you 15 a snapshot of the life and existence of an independent 16 record company, but primarily it will establish two 17 points. First, it will demonstrate that the 18 independent record companies are small businesses, 19 like many small businesses, operate on very tight 20 margins. Small increases in costs or decreases in 21 sales revenue can have a substantial impact on their 22 viability as a business. Moreover, for example, the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 decrease in sales they may have one year will decrease
2 the amount of music they're able to bring out in the 3 following year.

4 Second part is many of these independent
5 record companies are dedicated to a genre, much like 6 the highly themed webcasts are going to be. The 7 independent record companies are very concerned that 8 with these highly specific themed channels, a user can 9 now sign onto the Internet and instead of buying CDs
10 from our catalog could simply set his computer to the 11 web site and listen to that instead of that. And that 12 substitution for sales, we would submit; is a 13 substantial factor that we, as a willing seller, if we 14 were a willing seller, would incorporate into our 15 negotiations. Thank you very much.

16 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you very
17 much.

18 MR. LEVINE: Good afternoon. My name is 19 Arthur Levine. I'm with the law firm of Finnegan,
20 Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner. I'm Copyright
21 Counsel to the American Federation of Television and 22 Radio Artists, better known as AFTRA, and I appear

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 decrease in sales they may have one year will decrease
2 the amount of music they're able to bring out in the 3 following year.

4 Second part is many of these independent
5 record companies are dedicated to a genre, much like 6 the highly themed webcasts are going to be. The 7 independent record companies are very concerned that 8 with these highly specific themed channels, a user can 9 now sign onto the Internet and instead of buying CDs
10 from our catalog could simply set his computer to the 11 web site and listen to that instead of that. And that 12 substitution for sales, we would submit, is a 13 substantial factor that we, as a willing seller, if we 14 were a willing seller, would incorporate into our 15 negotiations. Thank you very much.

16 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you very
17 much.

18 MR. LEVINE: Good afternoon. My name is 19 Arthur Levine. I'm with the law firm of Finnegan,
20 Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner. I'm Copyright
21 Counsel to the American Federation of Television and 22 Radio Artists, better known as AFTRA, and I appear

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 before you today on their behalf. I'm also Copyright 2 Counsel to the American Federation of Musicians of the 3 United States and Canada, AF of M, but in this 4 proceeding, the AF of M will be represented by 5 Patricia Pollach with the law firm of Bredhoff &
6 Kaiser. General Counsel of the AF of M will present 7 an opening statement on behalf of AF of M after I 8 conclude.

9 AFTRA is a national labor organization 10 representing more than 80,000 performers and 11 newsmen throughout the United States. Fifteen 12 thousand of those members are vocalists on sound 13 recordings, including approximately 4,000 singers who 14 have royalty contracts with record labels and 11,000 15 singers who are background singers.

16 During this proceeding, you'll hear a 17 great deal of discussion of the business aspects of 18 the webcasting and recording industries. AFTRA hopes 19 to put a more human face on the proceedings. The 20 monies generated by the webcasting royalties set by 21 this Panel will, in part, to real people, performers, 22 and we hope that that amount will represent

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 significant income for them at some point in the 2 future.

3 As you know, for decades, performers have 4 heard their recorded performances performed over radio 5 and television over and over again but have received 6 no compensation from the broadcasters. Because of the 7 powerful lobbying effort of broadcasters, there is no 8 performance right for these sound recordings. At the 9 same time, the composers of music have received 10 significant payments when their music has been 11 broadcast.

12 When Congress enacted the Digital 13 Performance Right and Sound Recording Act in 1995, it 14 provided for the first U.S. sound recording 15 performance right of any kind. That Act ensured that 16 royalties collected under the Act are shared with the 17 performers on the sound recordings when the sound 18 recordings are digitally performed. Traditional 19 broadcasting continues to be exempt from any payment 20 for performances, even when it's in digital form, 21 because the broadcasters' political power has not 22 diminished over the years.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Put yourself in the position of an artist
2 whose performances are broadcast and broadcast with no 3 payment. They feel exploited. Now, a new stream of 4 income under the Digital Performance Right and Sound 5 Recording Act opens up to them. The question, 6 however, is whether at the end of the day performers 7 will continue to feel as though others are reaping 8 financial benefits from their efforts. Will this new 9 right prove to illusory or will it be a right which 10 provides significant income? Will the royalties set 11 by this Panel result in the level of income to the 12 performer which reflects the value of their artistry?

13 And in that regard, I suggest that without 14 referring specifically to the numbers in the last 15 chart that Mr. Garrett showed you under the restricted 16 portion of his opening statement, if you take the 17 figure proposed by the webcasters for nine webcasters 18 and multiply that by two and a half percent for non-19 featured musicians, which AFTRA represents, and divide 20 that by the number of non-featured musicians, you come 21 up with a minuscule number for each non-featured 22 performer, as well as for if you do the same

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 multiplication at 45 percent for featured performers.
2 It's not a realistic number, in our opinion.

3 Royalty artists now receive a royalty for 4 the sale or distribution of each sound recording of 5 their performance. They don't receive any fee for 6 making an album. Their contracts with the record 7 companies generally provide for an advance. From that 8 advance, the artists pay all of the production costs 9 of the album, 50 percent of the independent promotion 10 costs, 50 percent of the costs of videos, and 50 to 11 100 percent of the tour costs. These costs are 12 subtracted from the royalties by the record companies, 13 and this is called recoupment.

14 Until all of those costs are recouped, the 15 artist doesn't receive any money from the sale of 16 sound recordings. As a result, it usually takes two 17 to three years before even a successful artist 18 receives his or her first royalty check. The license 19 fees that are set by this Panel are not recoupable.
20 This will be real money to performers, and for many 21 royalty artists, these fees will be the only income 22 that they receive from their performances on sound

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 recordings.

2 You'll hear in testimony from Greg 3 Hessinger, the National Executive Director of AFTRA, 4 that is a webcaster was forced to create its own sound 5 recording for streaming, the minimum cost for the 6 webcaster to create this recording for transmission
7 would be over $350 for a four and a half minute
8 recording. What this suggests is that the webcasters 9 enjoy a significant benefit under the compulsory 10 license allowing them to webcast.

11 All that the performers ask is that the 12 rate set by this Panel be such that the performer is 13 compensated fairly. It is, after all, the performers
14 -- the Chet Atkins, Barbara Streisands, Tony Bennetts 15 -- who transform the musical composition into hugely 16 popular recordings. That popularity is what makes 17 them valuable to webcast. Please understand, however, 18 for each Atkins, Streisand or Bennett, there are 19 royalty artists and background singers who do not 20 enjoy anywhere near approaching the financial rewards 21 of those top singers.

22 You'll hear testimony from Jennifer

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Warnes, a professional singer, songwriter, and record
2 producer, who will describe her career as a recording 3 artist and the effort she has put into her career 4 compared to the financial rewards she has received.
5 Also, you'll hear from Kevin Dorsey, who has performed 6 on more than 200 record, and the studio hours he has 7 spent in the production of recordings as a background
8 singer for Michael Jackson, Aretha Franklin, Stevie 9 Wonder, and others.

10 Both of these performers will urge the 11 Panel to recognize in setting a rate the significant 12 role of the performer in creating the sound recordings 13 that webcasters use in building their professions.
14 Once again, during the course of these hearings, we 15 urge this Panel to keep in mind the fact that it is 16 the genius of the performer upon which the webcasters 17 are establishing their businesses. We simply ask that 18 this artistry be recognized and rewarded. Thank you.

19 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you very
20 much.

21 MS. POLACH: Good afternoon, Mr. Chairman
22 and members of the Panel. My name is Patricia

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Pollach, and I'm an attorney with the firm of Bredhoff
2 & Kaiser, and that firm, in turn, is General Counsel
3 to the American Federation of Musicians.

4 The American Federation of Musicians is an 5 international labor organization that represents over 6 100,000 member professional musicians in the United 7 States and Canada. Our members include many featured 8 recording musicians, those with royalty contracts, and 9 they also include non-featured recording musicians; 10 that is, session musicians and background musicians 11 working in the record industry.

12 As my colleague, Arthur Levine has said, 13 recording musicians, both featured and non-featured, 14 have an important stake in this proceeding. Congress 15 has mandated that the recording artists must share in 16 the receipts from the webcaster compulsory license.
17 And Congress has said that 45 percent of those 18 receipts must be allocated to featured artists, two 19 and a half percent of those receipts must be allocated 20 to non-featured musicians, and two and a half percent 21 of those receipts must be allocated to non-featured 22 vocalists. Thus, in total, 50 percent of the receipts

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 from this compulsory license are going to go to 2 performing artists, both featured and non-featured and 3 both vocalists and instrumentalists, or musicians.

4 You already know you're going to hear 5 voluminous evidence in this proceeding about the 6 business of the webcasters, and you already know 7 you're going to hear voluminous evidence about the 8 business of the record companies. But the basis of 9 the businesses you're going to hear so much about over 10 the next 12 weeks is a special kind of product; it's 11 a work of art. And the AF of M evidence in this 12 proceeding is going to focus on that art and on the 13 artists, and we will show you how the skill and talent 14 and hard work and the creative genius of performing 15 artists are the key components of this work of art, 16 the sound recording.

17 You will hear from Harold Ray Bradley who 18 will talk about what happens in a recording session.
19 And he's a witness extremely well-situated to explain 20 to you the role played by musicians, not just because 21 he's the International President of American 22 Federation of Musicians and of its Nashville local or

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 because he's a member of the Board of Governors of the 2 National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, but 3 in particular because he's known as the most recorded 4 guitarist in history whose active recording career has 5 spanned over 50 years, since 1946. You may never have 6 heard his name before this proceeding began, but it's 7 almost certain that you've heard him play, because he 8 has participated in hit recordings with many great 9 artists, such as Elvis Presley, Patsy Kline, Willie 10 Nelson, Joan Biaz, Henry Mancini, Connie Francis, 11 Loretta Lynn, Tammy Wynette, just to name a few.

12 You will hear from Harold Bradley how what 13 happens in the recording session is the transformation 14 of a song or of the underlying song into something 15 entirely new, a new product. The songwriters are fond 16 of saying that it all starts with the song, and their 17 fellow artists/musicians don't disagree with that.
18 That's true, we say, but it doesn't end there.

19 And the example that we will spend some 20 time with is the example of the song, "Crazy," written 21 by Willie Nelson. He recorded it on a demo, which is 22 common practice, and reports often say that Patsy

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Kline didn't much like the demo, and some reports say 2 she didn't much like the song either, but she agreed 3 to record it, and so a recording session was called in 4 1961.

5 Seven musicians were called to that 6 recording session, and they sat around and they 7 listened to the demo, and as you will hear, it was 8 true in that case and not uncommon that that was the 9 first exposure they had to the song. They didn't have 10 sheet music before or rehearsals before. They went to 11 the session, they heard the song, and everybody 12 thought that demo had a lot of problems. And Harold 13 will talk about what some of those problems were.

14 But they sat together in a four-hour
15 session and proceeded to develop the perfect 16 arrangement and the perfect accompaniment to that 17 particular song and then they recorded it. And that 18 recording became a country hit in the '60s and a pop 19 hit in the '60s. In 1997, the amusement park 20 operators named it the number one jukebox hit of all 21 time. And the greatest hits album that it appears on 22 is still a top seller today.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 In our evidence, in our direct case, we 2 have provided you with the demo side by side -- the 3 demo is recorded by Willie Nelson -- side by side with 4 the Patsy Kline recording, and you can compare, and 5 you can see the transformation of the song.

6 Well, as enthusiastic as performers are 7 about their art as art, it is true that it is also a 8 business, and it's got to provide a livelihood to 9 musicians and singers, to the performing artists, if 10 they're going to be able to continue creating. So we 11 want to say in our direct case and give you some 12 insight into how musicians get paid.

13 The American Federation of Musicians has 14 long been negotiating a standard collective bargaining 15 agreement that governs terms and conditions in the 16 recording industry, and the compensation part of that 17 agreement really has three completely distinct 18 features. Musicians earn scale wages. They 19 compensate them for the time they spend actually in 20 the recording studio, and that scale wage includes 21 pension, contribution, and it includes a health and 22 welfare payment.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 A completely different but extremely 2 important facet of the compensation for musicians is 3 something called the Special Payments Fund. It's not 4 a true royalty, but it is a method of providing 5 compensation to musicians that's tied to sales and 6 that provides them some benefit from sales profits.
7 So companies pay in -- signatories companies pay into 8 the Special Payments Fund based on a formula that is 9 tied to sales, and then the Fund distributes that 10 money to musicians based on a formula that is tied to 11 their participation in the industry. It's a critical 12 part of the compensation for an active recording 13 musician, and it follows that if sales fall, then the 14 industry compensation falls in the industry.

15 Royalty artists also have the benefit of 16 the royalty contracts that they negotiate separately, 17 but as you are going to hear, and you've heard a 18 little bit already, often the level of sales of their 19 product don't generate royalties under those 20 contracts. And if follows, of course, that reduced 21 sales also will harm royalty artists extremely.

22 What has been missing -- oh, well, and the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 third part of the compensation structure is what we 2 call new use or compensation to musicians if a 3 recorded song gets used in another medium later. For 4 example, if a recorded song is used in a movie 5 sometime later, then there's compensation to the 6 musicians who recorded the song.

7 But the piece that's been missing from 8 this compensation structure, and missing historically, 9 was compensation to musicians and to vocalists for the 10 exploitation of their songs on the radio or other 11 kinds of performances, and Arthur Levine had already 12 talked to you about that. The American Federation of 13 Musicians long thought that this was a terrible 14 injustice and participated in every effort over many, 15 many years to amend the law to provide a performance 16 right in sound recordings.

17 At the dawn of the Digital Age, the AF of 18 M was right there with AFTRA and with the record 19 companies working hard for the creation of a digital 20 performance right. And in particular, we worked to 21 ensure that the new income stream that derive from 22 this right would in fact be shared with others. And

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 we have succeeded in that, and as I've explained, 45
2 percent to the featured artists, two and a half 3 percent to non-featured musicians, and two and a half 4 percent to non-featured vocalists.

5 Members of the Panel, the AF of M is proud 6 of the union standards that we've negotiated over the 7 course of five decades, but we also know that these 8 standards are modest when compared with the revenue 9 generated by hit recordings. And now that we are in 10 a position of seeing new businesses poised to generate 11 new revenues that are fundamentally based upon our 12 creative work, and as you determine the fair market 13 rate that these new businesses must pay for the use of 14 the sound recordings that derive from our talent, our 15 hard work, and our creativity, I guess we'd like to 16 remind you of some words that were said at the 17 beginning of the hearing. Mr. Chairman, you told us 18 that Learned Hand said that a royalty was a device in 19 the aid of justice. We urge you to remember the 20 artists' stake in this license proceeding and make the 21 license rate you set truly a device in the aid of 22 justice for artists. Thank you.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you very 2 much. And that concludes, then, the presentation from 3 the copyright owners and performers?

4 MR. GARRETT: Yes, Your Honor.

5 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you.

6 MR. RICH: Good afternoon, Your Honors.
7 My name is Bruce Rich. I and my colleagues from Weil, 8 Gotshal are here representing three groups of 9 interested parties in this proceeding: broadcast 10 streamers, by which we refer to FCC-licensed radio 11 broadcasters who simultaneously stream their over-the-12 air programming on the Internet; webcasters, that is 13 entities which run Internet-only audio streaming 14 businesses; and background music services, that is 15 business that provide background music primarily to 16 business establishments.

17 The way we're going to divvy up this 18 afternoon, in trying to keep up with our friends on 19 the other side, we've got five presenters, actually.
20 I'm going to address the Section 114 and Section 112 21 fee proposals for the broadcast streamers and the 22 webcasters, as well as the analytic structure

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 underlying those proposals. Bruce Joseph, of Wiley, 2 Rein, will speak to the particular circumstances of 3 FCC-licensed radio broadcast streamers, as they bear 4 on the issues raised by this proceeding. Denise Leary
5 of NPR will outline the case for the public
6 broadcasters. My partner, David Berz, will address 7 the particular Section 112 circumstances of the 8 background music industry, which, as I think you're 9 aware, are exempt from the 114 liability and for which 10 there is a separate fee proposal from the copyright 11 owners. And last but not least, Mr. Steinthal will 12 address the substance of RIAA's direct case.

13 By way of introduction, I do want to 14 simply say a few words about primarily Mr. Garrett's 15 presentation and more generally the thrust of the RIAA 16 case. RIAA, it's by now clear, will be relying upon 17 a group of licenses which they claim demonstrate what 18 willing buyers and willing sellers would pay for sound 19 recording performing rights in a free marketplace.
20 Now, while superficially attractive, we intend to 21 demonstrate that in reality these agreements do not 22 form reliable benchmarks for establishing the fees at

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 issue here. As Professor Jaffe will expand on in his 2 testimony, and has dealt with at a general level in 3 his direct testimony, these types of agreements in 4 fact tell us very little about what other willing 5 buyers, specifically our clients, would pay for these 6 rights.

7 Strictly as a quantitative matter, RIAA
8 has proffered 25, it would like to proffer a 26th 9 agreement, from a universe of some 2,000 streaming web 10 sites -- 25 out of 2,000. Now, many of these 11 remaining 1,775 or so web sites, such as the broadcast 12 streamers, bear little or no resemblance whatsoever to 13 the 25. Others of the 1,900, I should say, and the 75
14 web sites have affirmatively rejected the very rates 15 and terms reflected in those 25. And all of the 16 remaining group, incidentally, who have put their lot 17 with this compulsory license proceeding have chosen, 18 as they're entitled, to invoke the protections of the 19 compulsory license and arbitration process precisely, 20 precisely to avoid being caught in the copyright vice 21 where to avoid, on the one hand, copyright 22 infringement penalties or, on the other, abandoning

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 the streaming of music they must pay the monopoly
2 piper the demanded fee.

3 Moreover, as Mr. Steinthal will elucidate, 4 even looking at these 25 agreements on their face, on 5 examination they're far less than meets the eye.
6 Section 114(f)(2)(b), which I believe has been handed 7 around to the Panel, as I'll further discuss, permits, 8 for sure, it permits this Panel to examine such 9 voluntary license agreements; there's no issue. But 10 it also instructs that such agreements, if they're to 11 be analyzed, must be scrutinized for whether they 12 encompass, quote, "comparable types of digital audio 13 transmission services," unquote, as well as whether 14 such agreements were negotiated in, quote, "comparable 15 circumstances," unquote -- very, very key provisions.

16 Now especially during the earliest period
17 of experience with a new statute where there is no
18 history of license experience, where, as is the case 19 with nearly all of the 25 licensees, survival till 20 tomorrow, or at least to the next round of financing, 21 is the overarching corporate objective, at a bear 22 minimum caution in adopting license fees agreed to in

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 such an environment as benchmarks for an entire 2 industry is in order.

3 In a parallel setting, the Department of 4 Justice, in a recent amendment to the ASCAP consent 5 decree, has disallowed licenses negotiated within a 6 five-year period in a new market from serving as 7 evidence of reasonable license fees in the ASCAP rate
8 court setting. And what does the government do? It 9 cited the fact, which is equally apt in the case of 10 the RIAA 25, that, quote, "Music users are fragmented, 11 inexperienced, lack the resources to invoke rate court 12 proceedings, and are willing to acquiesce to fees 13 requiring payment of a high percentage of their 14 revenue because they have little, if any, revenue," 15 unquote, words that I believe resonate here and that 16 as the record develops will give enormous poise to the 17 weight to be given to the RIAA 25.

18 Now, turning to my own overview of our own 19 affirmative case, I'd like to start by talking a bit 20 about the statutory framework that governs here, and,
21 again, turning the Panel's attention to Section 22 114(f)(2)(b), which finds its parallel in the 112

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 provision in 112(e) (4) . . And I'd like to begin, first, 2 by asking and talking a bit about why there is a 3 compulsory license here in the first place, something 4 which Mr. Garrett notably elided from his otherwise 5 comprehensive presentation.

6 Now, as Professor Fisher will testify, as 7 a matter of legislatively history, the new to U.S.
8 copyright law sound recording performing right was 9 enacted principally out of concern that certain 10 emerging means of distributing music enabled by new 11 technology might reduce sales of sound recordings.
12 Principal focus of concern was on downloading; that 13 is, the placing of copies of digital sound recordings 14 on the hard drives of consumers' computers, and on on-15 demand streaming, the so-called celestial jukebox, 16 which permits the consumer to listen, typically for a 17 fee, to streamed music of his or her choice on demand.

18 Now, for those kinds of activities, for 19 on-demand streaming or to provide functionality, or 20 functionally similar interactive, as we might call 21 them, services, first the DPRA, in 1995, and then the 22 DMCA, in 1998, compelled the entity desiring to stream

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 music in one or more of those formats first to obtain 2 licenses from the owners of the sound recording.

3 Now, these are not, however, the 4 activities involved here, which instead involve what 5 Professor Fisher refers to as ancillary methods of 6 distributing music over the internet, specifically 7 noninteractive, nonsubscription webcast. I might say 8 parenthetically, that it's a given that neither are we 9 concerned here under this compulsory license, focusing 10 on noninteractive, nonsubscription webcasts with video 11 licenses, with jukebox licenses or with a panoply of 12 other licenses negotiated dealing with different 13 copyright rights, in different markets, with different 14 players and not subject to the concerns which animated 15 the compulsory license here.

16 And the activities we are concerned with,
17 however, pose far less of a threat to the copyright 18 owners than the forms of downloading and on-demand 19 streaming which animated the legislation to begin 20 with. And indeed, as our uncontested evidence will 21 demonstrate, our clients' webcasting activities 22 promise to produce enormous, enormous promotional

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 benefits to the labels, no differently than 2 over-the-air broadcast radio has done for generations.

3 Now, admittedly, this new and emerging
4 line of commerce raises a dilemma, which is discussed 5 by Professor Jaffe in his testimony. The clearance of 6 performing rights to stream large numbers of sound 7 recordings entails potentially large transactions, of 8 course, making the concept of a centralized 9 collective, offering, if you will, a form of blanket 10 license an attractive license option. But at the same 11 time such a collective almost by definition enjoys 12 very large market power. The RIAA represents all of 13 the major labels, several hundred independents and its 14 members account for fully 85 percent of all records 15 sales in the United States.

16 Now in balancing this dilemma, the public
17 policy solution which the Congress reached in the Act, 18 both to facilitate these emerging businesses while 19 constraining the market power resulting from allowing 20 a collective to offer these kinds of blanket licenses, 21 wants to create the compulsory license mechanisms, of 22 Sections 114 and 112.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 I should note that it's a little bit
2 ironic and more than a little ironic to hear Mr.
3 Garrett not too subtly suggest during this opening 4 that indeed, there is a concern brought about by 5 compulsory licensing and that is somehow artificially 6 to depress the prices which the monopolists would 7 otherwise extract in the marketplace. With due 8 respect for that argument, I think he's got it 9 completely backwards. The purpose of the compulsory 10 license and indeed, I think, a prior CARP precedent 11 here would indicate that being the case is designed 12 frankly to constrain the possibility that super 13 competitive pricing would be achieved in the market 14 place and if there were any doubt about that one need 15 only look at the legislative history of the Act and 16 the Department of Justice
17 Anti-Trust Division expressions of point of view about 18 that subject.

19 Now as I will now get into the statutory 20 license mechanism, indeed, the structure of the 21 governing language has important implications for 22 evaluating both sides of the cases. First, the very

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 fact that we're dealing with a statutory license, with 2 a licensing mechanism that takes away exclusive 3 license authority from the RIAA's members is itself 4 meaningful.

5 As Professor Jaffe's testimony elucidates, 6 if Congress had considered it acceptable for a "market 7 rate" to be one set simply by the interaction of RIAA 8 and/or its individual members with our clients, it 9 wouldn't have created the compulsory license. It 10 follows, as Professor Jaffe testifies, that the 11 compulsory license is designed to achieved something 12 other than a simple replication of the license fee 13 experience that would occur in its absence. We 14 sharply and completely disagree with the RIAA 15 proposition to the contrary, namely, that it is 16 scarcely more of a role for this Panel than to 17 determine that, in fact, a series of agreements were 18 reached and that since those agreements were reached 19 in this marketplace, and were "voluntarily entered 20 into" by several third parties, that that basis 21 presumptively becomes the basis on which an entire 22 industry's license agreements were reached.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Again, the statutory license results from 2 a recognition of the market power enjoyed by the RIAA 3 in this instance, market power that but for the 4 anti-trust exemption afforded its statutory 5 license-related activities would raise serious 6 competitive concerns.

7 Indeed, where no compulsory license
8 protection exists, where the labels have unfettered 9 license authority, for example, with respect to 10 interactive services, it's notable under the statute, 11 this is 114(e) of the statute, that RIAA is explicitly 12 barred from negotiating prices and terms on the 13 industry's behalf, precisely out of the concern -- 14 this is now the Department of Justice's words, of the 15 implications of a "licensing cartel" with the power 16 "to set higher than competitive prices."

17 Now with that -- those thoughts in mind, 18 let's take a look at the statutory language itself.
19 Section 114(f)(2)(B) provides that the Panel -- may I 20 have another copy? Thank you. Provides that the 21 Panel "shall establish rates and terms that most 22 clearly represent the rates and terms that would have

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 been negotiated in the market place between a willing 2 buyer and a willing seller."

3 In reaching this determination the Panel 4 shall base its decision on economic, competitive, and 5 programming information presented by the parties, 6 including "whether the use of the service may 7 substitute for or may promote the sales of phono 8 records" and "the relative roles of the copyright 9 owner and the transmitting entity in the copyrighted 10 work and the service made available to the public with 11 respect to relative creative contribution, 12 technological contribution, capital investment costs 13 and risks." Notably, going on and indicating that in 14 establishing such rates and terms, the Panel may -- 15 not shall -- may consider the rates and terms, as I 16 quoted earlier for comparable types of digital audio 17 transmission services and comparable circumstances 18 under voluntary license agreements.

19 That this Panel's role is not ministerial,
20 that it is not confined to blessing as market
21 approximating any deals that RIAA might proffer to it 22 is plain, not merely from the public policy and

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 economic underpinnings of the compulsory license as 2 discussed, but from the foregoing language itself, we 3 would submit.

4 The Panel shall establish rates and terms 5 that most clearly represent those that "would have 6 been negotiated" not "that have been negotiated" in 7 the marketplace between a "willing buyer and a willing 8 seller." And that determination shall be based on a 9 wide range of information comprehending economic, 10 competitive programming, promotional value and 11 considerations of relative costs, investments and 12 technology and the risk calculus set forth in the 13 statute. Those are all mandatory attributes of what 14 would have happened in a marketplace, taking account 15 of all of those that must go into the determination of 16 what the willing buyer and willing seller in this 17 market would have agreed to. As noted, it's not a 18 coincidence. It's not accidental that the language 19 permits the Panel to consider voluntary agreements.
20 It may do so, but it need not and at that, as noted, 21 it must assess whether those agreements pertain to 22 comparable types of transmission services and were

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 entered into in comparable circumstances. Nowhere, 2 nowhere does the statutory framework state or imply as 3 RIAA would perhaps otherwise have it, that conclusive 4 weight must be given to such voluntary agreements.
5 Quite instead, the Panel's assigned task is to 6 determine the rates and terms that a willing buyer and 7 seller would have agreed to in a competitive market; 8 a market not characterized by the market power that 9 the RIAA collective brings to bear in its 10 negotiations, a market in which the panoply of 11 economic, competitive, programming, promotional value, 12 cost, risk, and other considerations that the Panel is 13 charged with examining are brought to bear. Now this 14 competitive market test is precisely the standard, 15 precisely the standard, that has been adopted in the 16 conceptually-related ASCAP and BMI rate courts, 17 charged with determining reasonable fees, that is, 18 fees that approximate fees that would be established 19 in a free market setting.

20 There, as well, while evidence of prior 21 agreements has been of some relevance to the musical 22 works fee setting process, it's been far from

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 conclusive on its face. In affirming the trial 2 court's rejection of such a proffer by ASCAP and the 3 cable television setting, then Chief Judge Newman 4 wrote the following for the Second Circuit, "the 5 opportunity of users of music rights to resort to the 6 rate court whenever they apprehend that ASCAP's market 7 power may subject them to unreasonably high fees would 8 have little meaning if the court were obliged to set 9 a reasonable fee solely or even primarily on the basis 10 of the fees ASCAP has successfully obtained from other 11 users."

12 Now despite RIAA's urging, nothing has 13 changed with respect to the foregoing tools of 14 analysis since 114(f) was amended. The issue here was 15 before and certainly is now that the determination of 16 what a competitive market rate would be with respect 17 to the services engaged in by our various clients, 18 that is the nub of the concept of willing 19 buyer/willing seller. It is the nub of the issue here 20 and it is the nature of the market that one needs to 21 look at and that market needs to be not a market 22 characterized by the existence of market power

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 manifested in the agreements we've seen, but rather, 2 that hypothetical competitive market which 3 necessitates this entire proceeding.

4 And as I indicated, there can be no
5 question from the face of the statute that in making 6 that determination all of the factors which the Panel 7 is required to look at, the shall part of the statute, 8 must come into the analysis and the Copyright Office,
9 most recently, in this case has affirmed that indeed 10 that list of factors is not exclusive and that the 11 Panel is free to take evidence on an array of other 12 factors that may well inform the Panel as to the 13 nature of what a willing buyer and willing seller rate 14 would constitute.

15 A few words about the prior CARP
16 proceeding that Mr. Garrett spoke to. Mr. Garrett 17 suggested that that CARP explicitly adopted a below 18 market standard. I would suggest that a proper 19 reading of the decisions in that case indicates that 20 when the Panel reached for the analogous music 21 performing right, musical work, performing right in 22 that case, it indicated that that rate itself framed

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 the upper and lower bounds of reasonableness, of what 2 the market would bear, and indeed perhaps giving the 3 tilt there to the 801 factors suggested that an 4 outcome at the lower range of the potential rates 5 suggested by the musical works performing right was 6 appropriate.

7 The upper range of rates then would have 8 been about 8 percent because at that time there was 9 one final deal in place and that was a deal in which 10 DMX had agreed to pay BMI 4 percent as a final 11 royalty. There was an issue there because there were 12 nonfinal royalties in place with ASCAP and so there 13 was supposition as to what the final rates might be.
14 So you had a potential upper bound rate of about 8 15 percent in that case. You had a final result as Mr.
16 Garrett indicated of about 6.5 percent following a 17 Panel's prior determination that the rate would be 5 18 percent. A correct reading of that case is not that 19 the 8 percent rate would have been supra market.
20 Indeed, quite to the contrary it would have been the 21 upper range of what the -- everybody felt would be 22 reasonable.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Now the reason I harp on this a bit is 2 that just last week there was a decision rendered by 3 Judge Stanton in Federal District Court in New York in 4 a case involving not DMX which had been the benchmark 5 standard setter for the prior CARP, but by a 6 competitive named Music Choice who also had been a 7 party to that prior CARP proceeding and Judge Stanton 8 determined that the very 4 percent fee which had 9 formed the basis for the prior CARP should not be, 10 should not form the basis, was not a proper 11 competitive market benchmark for fee setting for Music 12 Choice, although Music Choice was a direct and is a 13 direct competitive in that market. Judge Stanton 14 instead set a fee for Music Choice at 1.75 percent of 15 music for BMI. This is now Music Choice's revenues.
16 And when one thinks about that against the backdrop of 17 the prior CARP proceeding, it's more than enlightening 18 because again, as we read the prior CARP proceeding 19 and I think the most reasonable reading, you now have 20 a basis for fee setting there which has been 21 effectively cut in half in the BMI rate court setting 22 and suggesting that a rate which was itself determined

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 to be market approximating upper bound 8 percent, 2 would not be a rate, in fact, that would be more 3 closer to half of that amount if that proceeding and 4 that record evidence were updated to the present 5 moment.

6 Now for the reasons already noted, the 7 limited license experienced to date within the new 8 market for sound recording performing rights, as well 9 as the fact that those licenses are the produce of 10 noncompetitive market conditions and reflect license 11 circumstances as Mr. Steinthal will address that 12 simply aren't comparable to those of our clients, that 13 combination means that that experience forms no basis 14 for the fee determination here.

15 We're left to find a benchmark that's more 16 suitable. And that benchmark is for all of the 17 reasons that Professor Jaffee illuminates in his 18 testimony, the broadcast radio industries performing 19 rights payments for the musical works embedded in and 20 integrally associated with the sound recordings in 21 this case. This is an important concept, Your Honors.
22 This is not a work that is plucked out of thin air and

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 having no relationship whatsoever to what we're about 2 in this proceeding. Every time a sound recording is 3 performed, there are two performances occurring.
4 There is a sound recording performance itself, a 5 subportion of which is before this Panel, and there is 6 at the same moment, and integrally associated with it 7 the performance of the underlying musical work.
8 They're inextricably linked with one another. And so 9 there is -- even at its root there is a core and 10 fundamental rationale in the absence of probative 11 evidence of fair market value, competitive market 12 value here. There's a compelling need to look 13 elsewhere and there is a compelling logic, we would 14 suggest in looking to the very corresponding musical 15 work performing right which is embedded in and 16 inextricably associated with the very same sound 17 recordings of performing rights which here are before 18 this Panel.

19 And there are a number of positive
20 attributes associated with looking at that experience 21 and tweaking it and shaping it and doing the necessary 22 to it to make it comparable for our purposes because

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 in contrast to the limited and nonrepresentative
2 license experienced to date in regard to the sound 3 recording performing right, the musical work 4 performing right has been negotiated over many, many 5 decades. Its fee structure is in place not for a 6 couple of dozen licensees, but with respect to 7 thousands of broadcasters. The fees themselves don't 8 represent a trivial amount of commerce at this point, 9 but rather amount to hundreds of millions of dollars 10 literally, annually in license fee payments. And 11 again, simply to emphasize the two performing rights 12 are totally complementary. The one generally can't be 13 performed without the other.

14 Now Mr. Garrett, in his opening simply 15 suggested that our case is predicated on the flawed 16 notion that the music publishing business and the 17 record business are in his words interchangeable, I 18 think he said. We make no such contention, nor need 19 we sustain any such contention to prevail with respect 20 to our model. We make the much more modest assertion 21 that in searching for admittedly imperfect surrogates 22 of a free market, couldn't agree more, Judge Van Loon,

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 about the difficulty and intangible quality of the 2 process in which we're engaged. It's a given. But 3 nevertheless, we are required to search for analogs 4 that work and that make sense. What we are saying is 5 that there is logic, there is rationale and indeed 6 there is history here for looking to the next best, we 7 would assert, market option, given the failure of the 8 25 agreements we believe at the end of this process to 9 stand up to analysis and that is a comparison of the 10 music performing right and the sound recording 11 performing right. The demand sound is the same for 12 both, has nothing to do with the underlying economics 13 of the music publishing business versus the record 14 business. These are inextricably combined. You need 15 both in order to perform the very same sound 16 recordings.

17 Now given these attributes, it's not 18 surprising that the one prior CARP charge with setting 19 the Section 114 rights that for the subscription 20 digital cable audio services utilized this very 21 benchmark. As I mentioned, they are using it as a 22 ceiling on the sound recording performing right. And

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 I mentioned to you what Judge Stanton recently did.
2 I won't repeat it. I will simply also note that quite 3 recently the Canadian Copyright Board adopted the very 4 same broadcast radio musical work performing right fee 5 as the benchmark. Indeed, it said that the very fee 6 payable there should be identical to govern the 7 Canadian sound recording performing right payable 8 under Canadian copyright law. This is not made up out 9 of whole cloth. There is a strong rationale for it.

10 Now how do we, very briefly, how do we 11 construct our model? Again, I'm not going to do this 12 in detail because it's in Professor Jaffe. He first 13 examined the royalties that over the air radio 14 broadcasters paid to the three music performing rights 15 organizations. That's ASCAP, BMI and SESAC. He 16 determined that the music characteristics of over the 17 air radio are similar and in many cases identical to 18 the product that the webcasters stream over the 19 internet. And that on that basis he further 20 considered the economic relationship that the music 21 performing right should bear to the sound recording 22 performing right and derived the conclusion which is

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 in his testimony and consistent with that of the prior 2 CARP that the right in issue in this proceeding should 3 command a lesser performance royalty than the musical 4 work performance right.

5 Now the fee basis for this proposal is 6 quite straight forward. What Professor Jaffe did was 7 to find a metric that could be used across media and 8 what he did was to take a fee experience and data 9 reflecting what radio broadcasters have paid and 10 translated that into a fee per listener number. And 11 as the testimony indicates, that on a per listener 12 hour, the basis is a fee which is 22 hundredths of a 13 cent -- .22 cents per listener hour.

14 Now because we face circumstances in which 15 in some cases webcasters do not intensively use music, 16 they have programming formats that use music quite 17 occasionally and other circumstances in which 18 webcasters may determine as they are legally entitled 19 to to secure some of their music performing rights 20 requirements in direct transactions with the copyright 21 owners. We and Professor Jaffe felt it appropriate to 22 construct alternative fee structures that both

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 accommodate that reality with respect to a subset of 2 the webcasters, namely those who don't use music
3 intensively who would otherwise be taxed unfairly
4 based on the analysis which is predicated on a music
5 intensive format from blanket licensing in the ASCAP 6 BMI world and also again to incent as a matter of 7 competitive, desirable competitive outcome, to incent 8 those webcasters who wish to do so. We use Comedy 9 Central as an example in our papers, to secure in the 10 marketplace the rights directly and so as an 11 alternative of pricing methodology and approach
12 constructed as described in Professor Jaffe's 13 testimony and in his appendix, there is developed in 14 the alternative a per listener song fee, as opposed to 15 per listener hour, something that's driven by the 16 volume of sound recordings actually utilized by the 17 webcaster, or in the alternative, something that we've 18 styled a segmented listener hour fee which covers 19 solely that percentage of listener hours as contained 20 compensable of sound recordings.

21 Having made those baseline benchmarks,
22 Professor Jaffe proceeded to make the necessary

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 adjustments to take account of the relative economic 2 relationship between the basic music performing right 3 as to the musical works and the sound recording of 4 performing right and in determining that the sound 5 recording royalty should be lower, should be lower 6 than the ASCAP royalty, this at Professor Jaffe's
7 testimony beginning at page 35, Professor Jaffe sets 8 forth a series of reasons and criteria that lead to 9 the conclusion and other openers today are going to 10 focus on several of these which include the enormous 11 promotional value of the public performances of sound 12 recordings, far greater in magnitude than is the case 13 with respect to the owners of the musical works 14 copyrights. And equally important, Professor Jaffee 15 cites to as the statute instructs the Panel to do, the 16 enormous technological investments, the significant 17 capital contributions, the great risk of not recouping 18 investments with reasonable returns faced by streaming 19 broadcasters.

20 At bottom, Professor Jaffe concludes, 21 based on what the record evidence will show that it is 22 the licensees who incur costs relative to revenues

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 collected with respect to services that are 2 disproportionately higher than anything sustained by 3 or occasioned to the record industry. Having in his 4 analysis going through two methodologies for 5 determining in a quantifying sense possible 6 promotional discounts, looking at the international 7 experience which Mr. Kempton does in his testimony and 8 at the U.S. experience, the conclusion derives from 9 that analysis which again is in the papers that the 10 overall value of the performance of sound recordings, 11 pardon me, the implied sound recording royalty, in 12 other words, the rate to be established herein is 13 about 52 percent of the estimate musical works royalty 14 that's the U.S. experience, the experience from 15 international is slightly in a band of 40 to 70
16 percent. Professor Jaffe takes the most conservative 17 discount, if you will, 30 percent from the listener 18 hour and per listener song fees, to derive a bottom 19 line of a blanket license fee of 15 one hundredths of 20 a cent per listener hour and a listener song model at 21 1.04 or 14 thousandths of a listener song, per 22 listener song as the basic fee driving this

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 proceeding.

2 A couple of quick words and I'll end on 3 ephemeral copies. Mr. Garrett misstates our client's 4 position in ascribing a zero value or suggesting that 5 we ascribe a zero value to ephemeral copies. That's 6 not the burden and the gist of our testimony.

7 What we do say is that the value of the 8 ephemeral right is inextricably tied into and 9 reflected in the value of the performance right 10 itself. As Professor Zittrain's testimony
11 demonstrates, the only function performed by ephemeral 12 copies is to facilitate and effectuate public 13 performances. As Professor Jaffe testifies, there is 14 no value in such copies separate or distinct from the 15 value of the performances they effectuate. In other 16 words, the performances generate the economic value.
17 That's not tantamount to saying there is no value to 18 the ephemeral copy, but rather in examining here the 19 value of the performing right, it already embraces 20 without allocation whatever value might separately be 21 ascribable to the ephemeral copy.

22 This suggests that while the Panel might

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 be free to allocate some portion of the monetary 2 formulas that we suggest if you were to adopt it, to 3 the ephemeral right, the total value, nonetheless, 4 should not exceed the value of the performing right 5 because of this basic economic recognition which is it 6 is the performing right that drives the value. It 7 isn't the separate and distinct value because there is 8 none in the ephemeral copies. The approach we urge 9 the Panel to adopt is to assess a single package 10 royalty, if you will, equal to our 114 fee proposal, 11 but if the Panel were to determine to set a separate 12 rate, then the sum of that royalty and the right of 13 public performance should not exceed the reasonable 14 fee proposal we make with respect to the performing 15 right. And secondly, if there is a separate rate to 16 be assessed, the portion ascribable to the ephemeral 17 copy, given its very limited and ancillary role, 18 should be relatively small in relation to what that 19 performing right is.

20 With that, I'll speed the dais.

21 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Mr. Rich, I see one 22 of your colleagues on his feet already.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. JOSEPH: I try not to waste any time,
2 given the clock moving with us. Actually, if you'll 3 bear with me -- by the way, my name is Bruce Joseph.
4 I'm with the Washington, D.C. law firm of Wiley, Rein
5 & Fielding. We represent Clear Channel
6 Communications, Salem Communications and the NRB, the 7 National Religious Broadcasters Music License
8 Committee. I will be speaking to you about a very 9 special type of streaming at issue here, that is the 10 simultaneous streaming by radio broadcasters of their 11 broadcast programming.

12 And before I begin, I'm going to ask my 13 colleague, Karyn Ablin to pass out two exhibits that 14 contain precisely the only restricted words that I
15 would utter if this were a closed proceeding.

16 Rather than making everybody get up and 17 leave, I am going to simply comment that Your Honors
18 may turn to Exhibit 1 and Exhibit 2, but not peeking
19 now. They come in contact and we don't want to ruin
20 it, so I will tell you that you may turn to --

21 MR. VON KANN: May I have the envelope
22 please?

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

+ + + + +

COPYRIGHT OFFICE

+ + + + +

COPYRIGHT ARBITRATION ROYALTY PANEL

+ + + + +

In the matter of:

Digital Performance Right in Sound Recording and Ephemeral
RecordingDocket No.
2000-9CARP DTRA
1 & 2CARP Hearing Room
LM-414
Library of Congress
Madison Building
101 Independence Ave, SE
Washington, D.C.Monday
July 30, 2001

The above-entitled matter came on for hearing, pursuant to notice, at 1:00 p.m.

BEFORE

THE HONORABLE ERIC E. VAN LOON	Chairman
THE HONORABLE JEFFREY S. GULIN	Chairman
THE HONORABLE CURTIS E. von KANN	Arbitrator

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

GINA,
Original + 3
of corrected page 143

name
spelling correction on line 13 new disk

also enclosed

1 MR. JOSEPH: I try not to waste any time,
2 given the clock moving with us. Actually, if you'll 3 bear with me -- by the way, my name is Bruce Joseph.
4 I'm with the Washington, D.C. law firm of Wiley, Rein
5 & Fielding. We represent Clear Channel
6 Communications, Salem Communications and the NRB, the 7 National Religious Broadcasters Music License
8 Committee. I will be speaking to you about a very 9 special type of streaming at issue here, that is the 10 simultaneous streaming by radio broadcasters of their 11 broadcast programming.

12 And before I begin, I'm going to ask my 13 colleague, Kara Ambling to pass out two exhibits that 14 contain precisely the only restricted words that I
15 would utter if this were a closed proceeding.

16 Rather than making everybody get up and 17 leave, I am going to simply comment that Your Honors
18 may turn to Exhibit 1 and Exhibit 2, but not peeking
19 now. They come in contact and we don't want to ruin
20 it, so I will tell you that you may turn to --

21 MR. VON KANN: May I have the envelope
22 please?

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 (Laughter.)

2 MR. JOSEPH: To Exhibit 1 and Exhibit 2 at 3 a suitable time. Nobody else will need to leave. I'm 4 afraid I won't be able to tell you all exactly what 5 I'm saying or what they're seeing at that time, but 6 that's how I think we can proceed and spare everybody 7 the need to get up.

8 I'm going to discuss several key points
9 with respect to the simultaneous streaming of radio 10 broadcast programming. Again, that's what I'm talking 11 about.

12 First, Congress has long recognized the 13 unique symbiotic relationship between radio 14 broadcasters and record companies. Consistently 15 rejecting record company efforts to obtain a public 16 performance right. And when it finally granted a 17 limited right in 1995, Congress specifically exempted 18 radio broadcasts because of the promotional value of 19 those broadcasts to the recording industry and by that 20 I include both the record companies and the performing 21 arts.

22 Second, I'll show how Congress got that

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 part right. The record will demonstrate that radio
2 broadcasts have enormous promotional value to record 3 companies and artists and the record companies spend 4 millions upon millions of dollars to cause radio 5 stations to play their records.

6 Now radio streams on the internet, of 7 course, contain exactly the same content and go 8 primarily, the evidence will show, to the same 9 audience as radio streams over the air. The only 10 difference is whether you're listening on a computer 11 or whether you're listening on a radio.

12 Third, I'll discuss the relevance of the 13 radiobroadcast market and what I've just spoken about, 14 the promotional value to this proceeding. The 15 longstanding relationship between record companies and 16 radio stations provides compelling evidence of what a 17 willing buyer would pay a willing seller for the 18 inclusion of sound recordings and radio broadcast 19 streams in a free, open and competitive market.

20 Fourth, I'll take a brief look at the 21 evidence related to radio broadcast streams provided 22 by RIAA. RIAA offers no evidence of any deals with

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 broadcasters. None. So when Mr. Garrett argues that 2 RIAA's case is fundamentally based on deals with the 3 same licensees and speaks of thousands of channels of 4 highly themed music, that has nothing to do with the 5 simultaneously streaming by radio stations of their 6 broadcasts.

7 Finally, I'll discuss the relative balance
8 of costs, risks and benefits which weigh overwhelming 9 in this case in favor of the rates and terms proposed 10 by the broadcasters and the webcasters.

11 Let's turn to congressional recognition of 12 the importance of radio broadcast to the record 13 industry. We should start with Congress because after 14 all, it's Congress that has the power to enact 15 legislation granting copyrights. I might add as an 16 aside that RIAA simply has it wrong when they call the 17 rights at issue here fundamental rights. The power 18 has been granted under the Constitution to Congress to 19 grant copyrights, to create copyrights to serve the 20 public interest by creating an incentive. There is no 21 God given right to collect for public performances.

22 Ever since a limited copyright and sound

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 recordings was recognized in 1972, Congress has 2 repeatedly rejected the grant of a general public 3 performance right. Even in 1995, when the limited 4 public performance right for subscription and 5 interactive digital transmissions was finally adopted, 6 Congress again reiterated its view that there should 7 be no sound recording performance right applicable to 8 radio broadcasts.

9 Now Mr. Levine disparaged this fact as 10 simply the political influence of the broadcasters.
11 Nonsense. RIAA and the recording industry takes a 12 backseat to nobody when it comes to political 13 influence. This was not about political influence.
14 The House and Senate reports when the 1995 Act was 15 passed both specifically say why and I might add they 16 did so with marked understatement. And I quote, "the 17 sale of many sound recordings and the careers of many 18 performers have benefitted considerably from airplay 19 and other promotional activities provided by radio 20 broadcasting."

21 Accordingly, Congress decided in 1995 that 22 it would do nothing, and again I quote, "to change or

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 jeopardize the mutually beneficial economic 2 relationship between the recording and the traditional 3 broadcasting industries."

4 Congress went even further. They 5 recognized the radio broadcasts might be digitally 6 retransmitted within the same market as in over the 7 air broadcasts. Thus, it expressly exempted even 8 third party digital retransmissions within 150 miles 9 of the broadcast transmitter. That's the 150 mile 10 issue that Mr. Garrett referred to earlier and there 11 will be more about that as the case develops.

12 Now Congress amended the Sound Recording
13 Performance Act of 1998 with the Digital Millennium 14 Copyright Act, but nothing in the 1998 Act upset these 15 key determinations and these key points.

16 So what does this all mean? The 17 legislative history bespeaks a congressional 18 determination that zero is, in fact, a reasonable 19 payment by radio broadcasters for the performance of 20 sound recordings in their broadcasts, taking into 21 account all of the relevant values, including the 22 promotional value.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 That determination adhered to for decades
2 and recently reaffirmed should provide the starting 3 point for Your Honors. Granted, it's not the ending 4 point. Congress has given the recording industry a 5 chance to come here to show why that rate that 6 prevails in radio should not prevail on the internet.
7 In other words, to show that internet streaming 8 differs in material ways from broadcasting and that 9 those differences justify their proposed rate.

10 They haven't made, in fact, they haven't 11 even attempted that showing. To the contrary, our 12 evidence will show that broadcasting and streaming, 13 especially streaming of broadcast programming are 14 extraordinarily similar and that a fee close to that 15 congressionally determined zero rate for over the air 16 radio is a fair approximation of what a willing buyer 17 would pay a lone seller on the internet.

18 Let's look for a minute, and actually it 19 may take more than a minute, at the promotional value 20 of radio to the recording industry. The evidence will 21 show extraordinary promotional value. To see this, 22 you will need to look no further than the recording

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 industry in the record companies own conduct. First, 2 the record industry's own data will show that 3 companies spend millions upon millions of dollars to 4 independent promoters in order to induce radio 5 stations to play their records. They spend additional 6 millions advertising for the radio industry and 7 undertaking other promotional activities to cause 8 airplay. Record companies supply thousands upon 9 thousands of free CDs to radio stations. They don't 10 have to do this. They could charge, but they don't.

11 Every single radio witness will confirm 12 that record company representatives aggressively seek 13 play on radio stations because they view radio play as 14 critical to the success of their records. Every one 15 of the radio witnesses.

16 We'll also provide direct evidence from 17 our direct case of evidence of promotional value.
18 Michael Fine, a recognized expert on the industry and 19 on what motivates consumer purchases of records will 20 testify and this is worth quoting: "It's a universal 21 truth in the music industry and radio airplay of music 22 has a powerful promotional effect on the sale of sound

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 recordings. The more a song is played on the radio, 2 the greater the sales of recordings that include that 3 song."

4 He also says, "Radio airplay is clearly an 5 overwhelmingly the most significant driver in 6 motivating music consumers to make album purchasing 7 decisions." He generates data from his business that 8 shows that 67 percent of all music consumers stated 9 that what they hear on radio most influences them when 10 it come to buying music and specifically, he found 11 that 27 percent identified heard on the radio as the 12 factor that most influenced a specific record purchase 13 which is more than twice the next most commonly 14 mentioned factor.

15 We'll offer survey conducted by Professor 16 Michael Mazis confirming that more than half of the 17 respondents said that listening to AM or FM radio 18 motivated their last music purchase.

19 How is that general information about 20 radio promotion relevant to a proceeding about the 21 internet? Well, you've now heard several times that 22 you're charged with determining what a willing buyer

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 would pay a willing seller in an open and competitive
2 market for the rights to perform sound recordings.
3 Those rights, of course, can't be examined in a 4 vacuum. They must be considered in light of all of 5 the benefits of performances to the record companies 6 and the performing artists. They are, after all, the 7. putative sellers in that market.

8 The free and competitive market that 9 exists today in connection with broadcast programming 10 is directly relevant. The programming of course is 11 the same. Dr. Mazis' study also confirms that most of 12 the listeners are the same. Now even though there's 13 no sound recording performance right in that market, 14 there are other rights that the record companies could 15 exploit as "willing sellers" if they believe that it 16 was in their economic interest to do so.

17 So let's look at what that market looks 18 like. Well, millions upon millions of dollars spent 19 to convince radio stations to play their music, record 20 companies have the right to charge for CDs, but they 21 don't. They give millions of dollars worth of free 22 CDs to radio stations, other words, in the closest

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 competitive market that exists radio doesn't pay the 2 record companies. The record companies spend huge 3 sums of money to induce radio stations to make 4 performances.

5 Now all of that should be enough to make 6 you stop and ask in a true, freely competitive market 7 on the internet, who would be paying whom?

8 Jim Donahoe, a witness from Clear Channel 9 says it well in his testimony, "record companies 10 eagerly pursue the opportunity to have their 11 recordings played on our stations. In an open, 12 competitive market, they would pay us for the 13 privilege of having their recordings played. Thus, it 14 seems perverse that radio stations should have to pay 15 the record companies for doing what they constantly 16 beg and pester us to do."

17 Let's look at RIAA's proposed fee model.
18 RIAA, I have already said, has no negotiated licenses 19 with broadcasters. None of the 25, not even the 26th, 20 they proffer, zero. Now that's out of 1,557 21 broadcasters who have filed notices saying that they 22 are going to use the Section 114 license.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. VON KANN: What was that figure again?

2 MR. JOSEPH: One thousand five hundred 3 fifty-seven. I'm not making that number up. It's not 4 mine. It actually comes from RIAA's direct case, page 5 4, footnote 2 of Steve Marks' testimony.

6 That fact in itself should cast serious
7 doubt on RIAA's case as to broadcasters. Remember, 8 Mr. Garrett stressed that he was trying to present 9 evidence of exactly the same licensees. They don't.
10 He also speaks of licenses granting rights to 11 thousands of channels. That has nothing to do with 12 the radio broadcaster who is streaming its broadcast 13 programming on one channel.

14 Now even beyond that, only 2 of RIAA's 25
15 agreements even have anything to do with third party 16 retransmitters of radio broadcasts. And remember, 17 those aren't even the members of the industry that 18 Congress referred to as having a long-standing 19 mutually beneficial relationship. These are third 20 party retransmitters.

21 Let's briefly look at those two deals.
22 This is where the exhibit will come in handy.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 According to data produced by RIAA on April 27th, one 2 of the services, a small company, a small web company 3 called Cyberaxis, has paid the amount reflected on 4 Exhibit 1, thus far under its RIAA license as of April 5 27th.

6 Do you all have that? Okay. Now you'll 7 hear much more about the other licensee in a little 8 while from Mr. Steinthal. For now, I'll note only 9 that the relationship between the deals allocated rate 10 for broadcast retransmissions and RIAA's requested 11 rate is instructive and just to give you a moment to 12 look at that allocated rate versus RIAA's requested 13 rate, you should look at Exhibit 2.

14 Now without saying whether it's higher or 15 lower, because I don't want to tip anybody's hands, 16 but even under RIAA's theory of the case which for all 17 of the reasons we've discussed is simply not correct, 18 and for all of the reasons Mr. Rich discussed and for 19 all of the reasons Mr. Steinfeld will discuss it's not 20 correct, the fee you see on Exhibit 2 logically would 21 serve as the most RIAA even under its own theory could 22 seek for radio broadcast transmissions.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 I'm going to digress for a moment and pick 2 up two other quick points before turning to my last 3 one.

4 First, and actually Bruce Rich touched on 5 these so I won't spend a lot of time with them, any 6 fee model must accommodate different radio 7 broadcasting formats and they must also accommodate 8 direct licenses. A lot of radio, as you know, is not 9 all music. There is certainly no basis for RIAA to 10 collect a fee for talk shows, news and sports 11 formatted programs with essentially no feature 12 performances of music. There are also other mixed 13 formats. Joe Davis of Salem Communications will tell 14 you about religious formatted stations represented by 15 the NRBMLC. Those stations perform relatively few 16 sound recordings. They actually sell blocks of time 17 to ministries who have teaching and preaching programs 18 in relatively few programs and those programs -- to 19 those performances of music typically don't drive the 20 station's revenue. Any fee model that's ultimately 21 set needs to take these format differences into 22 account and charge streamers proportionally for their

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 use of sound recordings. The proposal of the 2 broadcasters and webcasters meets that criterion.

3 The fee structure should also encourage 4 direct licensing, that is, as Bruce Rich mentioned, 5 directly negotiated deals between individual copyright 6 owners and streamers. Congress has directed you, 7 after all, to look at competitive market models. You 8 should be sure that by setting a fee in this 9 proceeding, you don't destroy the incentive for a 10 competitive market to develop. And the only way to 11 permit that is to develop a fee structure that doesn't 12 require the streamer to pay twice if it goes out and 13 acquires a direct licensee. The broadcaster/webcaster 14 proposal includes this feature. As far as I can tell 15 from reading it, RIAA's proposal at this point, does 16 not.

17 Finally, a few comments about relative
18 contribution cost and risk, particularly with respect 19 to radio broadcasters who are trying to stream on the 20 internet. The testimony of the radio broadcasters 21 you'll hear makes several things clear. Radio station 22 websites generally, and streaming through those

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 websites in particular, are simply extensions of the 2 radio broadcasting business. They exist to promote 3 the radio business and to enhance the listeners' 4 relationship with the station. Thus, record companies 5 and artists are benefitted in two ways. First, they 6 receive the direct promotional benefits of play during 7 the stream. Second, to the extent streaming 8 strengthens the commitment of the listeners to the 9 radio station, it enhances the promotional value of 10 the performances on the radio station. The witnesses 11 will also tell you that streaming is extremely 12 expensive. Bandwidth and technology costs are 13 enormous. The radio witnesses will testify as to the 14 huge costs and risks that they're bearing to try to 15 get in to the streaming business. No radio 16 broadcaster is now making money streaming. Stephen 17 Fisher of Entercom will testify no streaming radio 18 station has been able to convince advertisers to pay 19 more for over the air ads streamed over the internet.
20 And because most streaming radio stations can't even 21 deliver 1,000 simultaneous listeners over the 22 internet, at present there's simply no market to sell

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 with respect to advertise for internet streaming.

2 Dan Halyburton of Susquehanna will 3 testify, all of Susquehanna stations streaming 4 operations are running at a loss. To date, 5 Susquehanna stations have covered no revenues from 6 streaming and Infinity, the second largest radio group 7 in the country doesn't stream, simply because it 8 doesn't believe there's a sensible business model to 9 support the activity.

10 Now these are the views of some of the 11 largest players in the industry. Think of how 12 difficult it is for the smaller players.

13 The royalty rates set in this proceeding 14 will have a profound impact on whether there ever will 15 be a radio streaming business on the internet.

16 Now against these huge documented costs
17 and risks incurred by the radio broadcast streamers, 18 and also the benefits and the lack of benefits to the 19 radio broadcast streamers, there's no evidence that 20 streaming adds any cost or risk to the record 21 companies or the record industry. The record industry 22 witnesses will talk about huge costs and risks of

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 producing records, but those costs and risks are all 2 sunk. They relate to the production and sale of 3 records and are more than compensated for by revenues 4 by existing lines of business, most notably, record
5 sales. Any revenues from streaming are pure gravy.

6 The record companies' talk of risk in this 7 context must be hugely discounted. It's not a risk 8 from streaming and as you will see, the marginal cost 9 of streaming to the recording industry is zero. In 10 addition to bearing no costs, of course, we've already 11 talked about the promotional burden, I'm sorry, excuse 12 me, the promotional benefit. So in sum, when you take 13 the relative costs, the relative risks and the 14 relative benefits, those factors will weigh decidedly 15 in favor of the broadcast streamers in this 16 proceeding.

17 For all of these reasons, we submit that 18 the property royalty for radio broadcast streaming is 19 the fee proposed by the broadcasters and webcasters.

20 Thank you for your attention.

21 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you.

22 MR. GULIN: Thank you, Mr. Joseph, before

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 you sit down I just have one quick question for you to 2 clarify what you mean by a broadcaster streamer is a 3 broadcaster that streams simultaneously, retransmits 4 simultaneously its own signal with no changes, doesn't 5 insert ads?

6 MR. JOSEPH: The relevant proceeding
7 before this Panel relate to the sound recordings and 8 it's the simultaneous streaming of the sound
9 recordings. There may be ad insertions.

10 MR. GULIN: But other than that's it's 11 just their own signal that's been retransmitted?

12 MR. JOSEPH: It's their own.

13 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you. Ms.
14 Leary.

15 MS. LEARY: Good afternoon. I'm Denise
16 Leary and I'm representing 407 public radio stations 17 as well as NPR itself. I'm going to take a little 18 stretch and put up -- thank you. I have one visual 19 aid to assist the Panel and it is the same as Table 1 20 in our experts report.

21 (Pause.)

22 Your task, as you've been over abundantly

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 reminded today, is to determine what the reasonable 2 fees are that should be paid by public radio to the 3 RIAA for the right to publicly perform sound 4 recordings through a digital medium such as the 5 internet.

6 In this proceeding we represent many of 7 the educational, noncommercial public radio stations
8 which are licensed by the Federal Communications 9 Commission. I want to note parenthetically that 10 public television is not a party in this case so the 11 Panel has before it just the task of setting rates for 12 public radio.

13 We have more than, as I mentioned, 400 14 public radio stations all of which are qualified to 15 receive federal funding from the Corporation for 16 Public Broadcasting. There are statutory requirements 17 that a public radio station must meet to qualify as 18 noncommercial and educational. You will hear 19 testimony that they must be owned or operated by a 20 public agency or a nonprofit, private foundation or 21 corporation or association or a municipality. They 22 may transmit only noncommercial programming for

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 educational purposes. Approximately two-thirds of the 2 stations that we represent are licensed to colleges
3 and universities. Their educational mission is clear.
4 The balance are licensed to nonprofits that hold the 5 license and community or municipalities that have set 6 up a broadcasting station in an area that's not served 7 generally by commercial broadcasting.

8 Our mission in public radio is to provide 9 culturally enriching educational programming which is 10 generally unavailable in any other medium. This is 11 true whether you look at --

12 MR. VON KANN: What these guys are doing 13 is not culturally enriching? I'm surprised to hear 14 that.

15 (Laughter.)

16 MS. LEARY: I make no comment. This is 17 true whether one looks at either webcast programming 18 or broadcast programming. Our programming is highly 19 produced and generally forms into one of three 20 categories: news, information or cultural, each of 21 them designed to enhance the listener's life. We were 22 created by Congress to accomplish two significant

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 purposes, to provide unique and diverse programming 2 and to harness technology to advance education. We've 3 done that through the broadcast medium and we are now 4 doing that through the internet for the very same 5 purposes. We view the internet as a powerful new 6 medium and a necessary one for us to reach more 7 diverse audiences in unserved areas. It is simply 8 another part of the mandate of public broadcasting.

9 The unique quality of our programming on 10 the web and on the air is reflected in the hundreds of 11 awards that have been bestowed. Public radio has won 12 radio broadcasting's equivalent of the Triple Crown.
13 We've won the DuPont Columbia, the Peabody and the 14 Pope Awards for many of our programs. More recently, 15 in December of this past year NPR's cultural 16 programming division heard on a number of the stations 17 that are before you in this proceeding received the 18 National Medal of Arts. It's a 19 congressionally-established medal and NPR was the 20 first media organization ever to win this award. This 21 is the division within NPR and the aspect of public 22 radio programming that makes the most intensive use of

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 music. Many, many, many of the hours that we 2 distribute over the web and on air have absolutely no 3 music in them, save for theme music which is generally 4 commissioned by public radio and is owned by it.

5 The award that I mentioned honors those 6 who make an outstanding contribution to the 7, excellence, growth and support and availability of the 8 arts in the United States. More recently, we have 9 begun to achieve recognition for our webcasting 10 program as well. The availability of high quality 11 programming is very much the mission of public radio 12 and that is why the internet is the necessary tool.
13 As you will hear later on in the testimony of our 14 witnesses, the number of web listeners that we have is 15 extremely small by comparison with our broadcast 16 audience. This is a factor we take into account in 17 adjusting our benchmark fees.

18 Programming placed on the individual 19 websites of public radio stations as well as national 20 public radio and Minnesota Public Radio is for all 21 intents and purposes the very same programming that is 22 broadcast by each station or in the case of National

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Public Radio, distributed to our stations for their 2 broadcast.

3 When financially possible, additional 4 printed resources and visual aids are added to the 5 webcast to enhance the educational value. There is 6 very, very little web based only programming available 7 on public broadcasting. We too are for a large part 8 streamers. We hold substantial archives of our news 9 and information programming for listeners to come back 10 and listen to a second time.

11 The financial value that the recording 12 industry accords to its license is a great 13 overstatement of its intrinsic value as one of the 14 many components we used to put together public radio 15 programming. They seek a significant fee and their 16 direct case sets forth business models and economic 17 analysis that we would submit is vastly overpriced as 18 to all webcasters, broadcasters and particularly to 19 public radio. There is, indeed, no license agreement 20 with any noncommercial, educational entity in the 21 RIAA's case before you, nor is there any factoring of 22 the missions and economics of public radio which, as

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 a recent Panel noted in deciding the fees to be paid
2 for musical works by public broadcasters on 1/18 3 should be taken into account. The Panel stated that 4 commercial and noncommercial broadcasters do, in fact, 5 operate under different economic models and one should 6 not be surprised that these models yield somewhat 7 different results, including differences in fair
8 market rates. This is simply absent from the RIAA's 9 case.

10 Section 114, as we've discussed numerous 11 times today, directs you to consider which rates most 12 clearly represent what we've been negotiating in the 13 market between a willing seller and a willing buyer 14 and that you are to look to the economic competitive 15 and programming information presented in this 16 proceeding, including whether our web programming 17 substitutes for or promotes the sales of records or if 18 it interferes with or enhances the recording 19 industry's stream of revenue. We would submit that 20 these factors all favor public broadcasting.

21 You must also consider the relative degree 22 of creative contribution that public radio adds to

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 what the copyright owners of the sound recordings have 2 indeed created: our technological additions to 3 enhance the quality of the sound, the visual and 4 printed materials that we usually put up in 5 conjunction with our webcasting and the investment and 6 costs and the risks that public radio takes on in 7 relationship to the copyright owners. We would note 8 again that the motion brought by the RIAA for proper 9 statutory standard to apply to this case, the 10 Copyright Office noted that the arbitrators should 11 consider the two factors I just enumerated, but they 12 should not limit your deliberations to these factors 13 alone.

14 Last, Section 114 directs you to consider 15 the rates and terms for comparable digital audio 16 transmissions and comparable circumstances for 17 voluntary license agreements negotiated. It is again 18 our position that there is no such comparable license 19 submitted in the RIAA's case.

20 There is also the direction of Section 21 802(c) of the Copyright Act which states that 22 arbitration panels considering these matters shall act

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 on the basis of a fully documented written record, 2 prior decisions of the CRT, prior copyright 3 arbitration panel determinations and rulings by the 4 Librarian of Congress. Given the limited 5 jurisprudence in this realm of sound recordings, we 6 believe that a recent CARP decision provides the best 7 benchmark for determining the rate you should apply 8 here.

9 We submit that musical works fees which 10 are paid by public broadcasters to ASCAP, SESAC and 11 BMI with proper adjustments are the fees that should 12 be considered by this Panel. The only other recent 13 decision regarding public performance of sound 14 recordings by the digital subscription services with 15 the Librarian's determination in 1998. In that 16 proceeding the fees paid for the underlying musical 17 works by the digital services were used as a starting 18 point. The Librarian ruled that the musical work fees 19 constituted the upper limit or outer boundary, if you 20 will, of the reasonable rate for that proceeding. We 21 submit that little has changed in the ensuing three 22 years that would suggest that sound recordings are any

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 more valuable than the musical works which they 2 embody. Moreover, in July of 1998, another Panel in 3 a well-reasoned opinion authored by Judge Gulin, 4 determined that public broadcasters should pay for the 5 public performance of musical works in the broadcast 6 medium and we take that as our starting work.

7 I'm just going to go quickly through our 8 model.

9 (Pause.)

10 This is Table 1. It's the first exhibit 11 to our expert witnesses' testimony and you have it 12 before you. And at the risk of giving the rest of you 13 eye strain, I apologize.

14 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Placed closest to 15 opposing counsel.

16 MS. LEARY: What we did was we took the 17 rights that were paid for the musical works in the 18 CARP Panel. The CARP Panel had before it just the 19 ASCAP and BMI portions of the total performing rights 20 fees. We had negotiated an agreement with SESAC which 21 is the third programming rights society. And that was 22 a total fee for television and radio. There was no

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 bifurcated fee in that particular proceeding.

2 What we did was we added a 3 percent
3 increment to account for SESAC share of the total 4 repertory of musical works, compositions and that gave 5 us 103 percent and applying that to the BMI and the 6 ASCAP fee, we reached a fee of $5,606,000. We then 7 had to decide how much should be allocated to public 8 television of that total fee and how much to public 9 radio. And what we did was we looked at the program 10 revenues over the prior 3 years for public radio and 11 public television expenses. I'm sorry, I said 12 revenues and I meant to say expenses. And we 13 determined what the estimated public radio fee would 14 be, a hypothetical fee for broadcasting ASCAP, BMI and 15 SESAC. We then took that as the hypothetical fee for 16 sound recordings, since we consider them equivalent 17 and we added an additional figure to account for the 18 fact that classical music is in the public domain and 19 therefore it is typically not, music in the public 20 domain is not licensed by the performing rights
21 society by definition. So we added another $800,000 22 for that and we got an estimated public radio fee for

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 broadcasting sound recordings. What we then did is 2 take a look at the insignificant audience that we have 3 on the web which is about 1.2 percent of the broadcast 4 audience that we have and we came up with a fee for 5 all of public radio of $24,000. This was based on a 6 survey that public radio conducted among its stations 7 including those that were webcasting, those that may 8 webcast some time in the future and those that have 9 decided against not doing it. And that is the fee 10 that we submit is the appropriate one here.

11 I certainly want to note that on the 12 revenue side public radio stations do operate quite 13 differently from anyone else in this proceeding, 14 again, something the RIAA has not taken into account.
15 Our sources of revenue can be very unpredictable and 16 reductions from any one source can have devastating 17 consequences both throughout the system level and at 18 the station level. Any one component that is valued 19 more highly than another will have a direct affect on 20 our ability to use that component in our programming.

21 Funding sources do include federal and 22 State and local government budgets, university/college

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 budgets, contributions from individuals, typically 2 during those difficult-to-like pledge drives and 3 underwriting from financial institutions and 4 businesses.

5 I don't want to repeat what has been gone 6 over so well by my colleagues. We did not plan our 7 arguments together. We're running the clock and I 8 want to save some time. But I would say that as to 9 the comments on broadcast streaming certainly do apply
10 to National Public Radio and its public radio 11 stations. We have a completely different model that 12 we think you must consider and consider that if you 13 place it too highly we will go back to stripping music 14 out of our programming. We did that for some period 15 of time until we negotiated music licenses with ASCAP, 16 SESAC and BMI because at the time they clearly had a 17 right for digital transmissions. We would go back to 18 that model if this CARP sets the fee too high.

19 Thank you for your time and attention.

20 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you.

21 MR. BERZ: Mr. Chairman, gentlemen, my 22 name is David Berz, I'm a member of Weil, Gotshal &

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Manges and I'm here on behalf of AEI Music Net, Inc.
2 and DMX Music, Inc., two companies that were merged 3 and are now wholly-owned subsidiaries of DMX AEI 4 Music, Inc. and that merger occurred in May of this 5 year.

6 MR. VON KANN: That was after these direct 7 cases were filed?

8 MR. BERZ: Correct.

9 MR. VON KANN: I see.

10 MR. BERZ: Just by way of clarification, 11 since much of this proceeding, most of it covers the 12 period when they were separate entities and because 13 they continue to operate as separate, but wholly-owned 14 subsidiaries, we don't see any particular need to 15 change any of the submissions that we've made to date.

16 MR. GULIN: Just for the record, what is 17 the merged company called?

18 MR. BERZ: It's called DMX AEI Music, Inc.
19 and that merger occurred on or about May 18th of this 20 year.

21 AEI and DMX differ in their circumstances 22 from other users of copyrighted works that you will

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 hear from in this proceeding in at least two 2 important, but related ways that I want to address 3 today.

4 First, as you have heard, AEI and DMX are 5 what we generally refer to as background music
6 services. We deliver demographically targeted music 7 to business establishments for use solely within those 8 business establishments and under strictly controlled 9 license terms that ensure that the sound recordings 10 delivered to these businesses never have a second 11 life. For example, consumers don't initiate a 12 background music listening experience. Instead, they 13 hear music which has been specifically selected for 14 the merchants which AEI and DMX serve. Because the 15 music played by background music service clients is 16 intended to be part of an overall shopping or dining 17 experience, the perception of this music is different 18 than it would be when people are delivered music in 19 their homes or work places by webcasters or 20 broadcasters for that matter.

21 Moreover, because the acoustics in stores 22 and restaurants where background music is used are

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 different than the acoustics in a consumer's home, 2 even the format, for example, of a programming may 3 differ from the format used by other services. For 4 instance, often our clients deliver monaural music 5 rather than stereo.

6 I use that by way of example to simply say 7 that many of the concerns with which this proceeding 8 is concerned and will address with respect to other 9 participants simply do not apply to AEI and DMX.

10 Second, because AEI and DMX deliver 11 content to business establishments rather than 12 directly to consumers, they enjoy an exemption from 13 the obligation to pay copyright owners represented in 14 this proceeding a royalty for the right to make public 15 performances of their sound recordings. As a result, 16 AEI and DMX are concerned with only a limited portion 17 of this proceeding, that portion which fixes the rate, 18 terms and conditions for the statutory license to make 19 ephemeral copies of sound recordings under Section 20 112(e) of the statute.

21 AEI and DMX are here to ensure that those 22 rates and terms are reasonable and that the rates do

1 not eviscerate the overriding congressional intent in 2 granting the background music services, the business 3 establishment exemption. We believe that this is 4 exactly what would happen if the royalty rates 5 proposed by the RIAA were to be adopted.

6 Now let me give you a brief overview of 7 our case and I do mean brief. In setting a reasonable 8 rate in terms for the making of ephemeral copies for 9 background music services, the Panel is tasked by 10 Section 112 with considering several important factors 11 including whether the use of the service substitutes 12 for or promotes the sales of copyrighted works and the 13 relative roles of the copyright owners and the service 14 providers in making the service available to the 15 public. Each of these factors will be addressed by 16 the testimony of three of our five witnesses. These 17 three witnesses are executives of AEI and DMX. Their 18 testimony will establish four major points. First, 19 the ephemeral copies with AEI and DMX are making are 20 temporary copies which facilitate the types of 21 transmission for which the background music services 22 enjoy an exemption from paying any copyright

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 royalties. In this regard, these ephemeral copies are 2 never sold. They are used solely to facilitate 3 performances which are exempt from copyright 4 obligation. They are made in the normal course of the 5 operation of the equipment used to transmit the sound 6 recording to the business establishment. Moreover, 7, neither AEI nor DMX derive any revenue directly from 8 these ephemeral copies. The ephemeral copies have 9 absolutely no independently exploitable commercial 10 value.

11 Finally, the ephemeral copies made provide 12 benefits to the copyright owners such as enabling 13 additional security measures or increasing the quality 14 of sound.

15 Second, the background music services will 16 demonstrate that they employ a variety of methods to 17 promote, as I indicated, rather than displace the sale 18 of sound recordings by the record labels. Some of 19 these methods include directly financing various 20 promotional efforts on behalf of the labels, investing 21 in technology that facilitates consumer purchases of 22 records and CDs and developing program and marketing

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 approaches to aid the recording industry in developing 2 and expanding the very markets for their business.

3 Third, the background music services also 4 employ various technologies and programming measures 5 in accordance with Section 112 of the Act to limit the 6 risk that any ephemeral copies made to facilitate 7 exempt performances somehow make it into the 8 marketplace and dilute the market value of copyrighted 9 work. These measures include the use of encryption as 10 well as other security measures which we will discuss; 11 cross fading tracks to make illicit copying difficult 12 and quite frankly unattractive; and complying with the 13 sound recording performance complements requirements.

14 Fourth and finally, with respect to the 15 relative roles, risks and investment of the background 16 music services vis-a-vis the copyright owners, the 17 background music services have made a variety of 18 investments in their services which have had the 19 effect of promoting copyright owners businesses and 20 enhancing their traditional streams of revenue. Some 21 of these investments include developing new 22 technologies which provide additional security and

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 facilitate purchases by consumers and programming 2 content delivered to business establishment so as to 3 provide better exposure of artists and target 4 particular market segments.

5 Now as you will learn AEI's and DMX's 6 contemplated business plans include continuing to 7 employ new technologies which require the making of 8 ephemeral copies in order to deliver content to 9 business establishments more efficiently and securely.
10 We submit that if a disproportionately high royalty 11 rate is established for the making of these ephemeral 12 copies, AEI and DMX may be forced to use older, less 13 efficient means of distributing content to business 14 establishment. This would benefit neither the 15 copyright owners, the background music services, or 16 the business establishment that the background music 17 services serve.

18 Now all of these factors in our view argue 19 for setting a flat, annual rate that is modest in 20 relation to other music right fees. In making these 21 arguments, we will rely on the testimony of two highly 22 distinguished experts in economics and intellectual

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 property law. Professors Jaffe and Fisher, who Mr.
2 Rich discussed, have stated in their written testimony
3 and will explain further when they testify before you, 4 that because the right to make ephemeral copies is 5 unquestionably subsidiary to the right to make the 6 performance in the first place, only a very small 7 share of the overall value of the performance can be 8 ascribed to the right to make an ephemeral copy.

9 In the case of the background music 10 services which are exempt from the obligation to make 11 payments for the public performance of sound 12 recordings, the Panel must therefore be particularly 13 careful, as I indicated earlier, not to undo 14 Congress's intention in granting the performanc 15 exemption by assigning an unduly high royalty rate for 16 the right to make ephemeral copies.

17 Now gentlemen, the RIAA has proposed that 18 our clients pay 10 percent of their gross revenues per 19 year subject to a $50,000 per year per company minimum 20 fee for the right to make ephemeral copies. Simply 21 stated, there is no credible support for this demand.
22 Neither the background music service licenses

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 negotiated with individual record labels, nor the 2 agreements negotiated with webcasters submitted into 3 evidence by the RIAA support its position. Without 4 naming names, the background music service licenses 5 offered as benchmarks by the RIAA set rates at between 6 16 and 15 percent of gross revenues attributable to 7 the individual, to the use of individual members' 8 sound recordings, less appropriate deductions in their 9 complicated agreements that we'll discuss in the 10 course of these proceedings.

11 These licenses also grant the licensees a 12 variety of rights far in excess of the right merely to 13 make ephemeral copies to facilitate exempt
14 performances. These agreements provide absolutely no 15 justification whatsoever for the demand that the 16 background music services pay, 10 percent of their 17 entire gross revenues for the right to make ephemeral 18 copies to facilitate delivery of their services to 19 business establishments.

20 As you have already heard from Mr. Rich
21 and you will hear from Mr. Steinthal, the webcaster 22 agreements which will be offered into evidence by the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 RIAA to justify their public programance royalty 2 demands from the webcasters and broadcasters are 3 inconsistent in our view with the appropriate willing 4 buyer, willing seller standard. But they also 5 demonstrate how unreasonable the RIAA demands are with 6 respect to fees for ephemeral recordings. Each and 7 every one of the 25 or so webcaster agreements which 8 contain a provision setting forth a separate fee for 9 ephemeral copies set the royalty rate for the 10 ephemeral copies at a fraction of the rate being 11 charged for the programance itself. In fact, some of 12 the webcaster agreements already set flat rates for 13 the making of ephemeral copies which are lower than 14 the rate proposed by our clients in this proceeding.

15 Moreover, the RIAA's proposal with respect 16 to AEI and DMX is entirely inconsistent even with the 17 rate the RIAA itself has proposed for the making of 18 ephemeral copies by the webcasters and the 19 broadcasters. Although the RIAA proposes to charge 20 the eligible nonsubscription services 10 percent of 21 the royalty rate, it proposes to charge our clients 22 the background music services a full 10 percent of

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 their gross revenues for making of similar ephemeral 2 copies.

3 Given these circumstances and after you 4 have heard the direct testimony of our clients and 5 experts and the cross examination of the industry 6 witnesses, we believe it will become clear that the 7 rate proposed by the RIAA is not one which under the 8 appropriate standard a willing buyer or seller would 9 accept in the marketplace and certainly not a rate 10 that this Panel should adopt.

11 At the conclusion of this proceeding, we 12 will ask the Panel to set a flat royalty rate of no 13 more than $25,000 per year per company for the making 14 of ephemeral copies to facilitate the delivery of 15 background music services to business establishments.
16 After you have heard the evidence, we are confident 17 that you will find that this rate is reasonable in 18 light of the existing marketplace agreements, the 19 promotional benefits the background music services 20 offer the recording industry and the relative roles as 21 the statute reads, contributions, costs and risks of 22 the background music industry.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Gentlemen, I look forward to presenting 2 our case to you. Thank you.

3 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you, Mr.
4 Berz. Mr. Steinthal?

5 MR. STEINTHAL: Can we have about a 5
6 minute break while we deal with the charts based on a 7 conversation we had earlier?

8 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Let's be in our 9 seats and ready to go by 5.

10 (Off the record.)

11 MR. STEINTHAL: Good afternoon, Your 12 Honors.

13 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Good evening.

14 MR. STEINTHAL: I now know why baseball 15 pitchers are notoriously crazy as they have to sit in 16 the bullpen for hours and hours and hours until they 17 get a chance to play.

18 I have the dubious task of finishing up 19 after those several hours. I know everyone wants to 20 move on and I'll try to be brief, but I do have a fair 21 amount to cover.

22 The focus of my remarks will be on the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 RIAA's case, its significant weaknesses both in 2 concept and as a matter of evidence. I will try not 3 to trod again over paths covered by my co-counsel, but 4 inevitably there may be some overlap at times.

5 Let me initially comment on the 6 importance, not of the direct case, but of the 7 rebuttal case. I'm going to ask you to be patient as 8 odd as that sounds. CARP cases are rather bizarre 9 from a litigation standpoint. The written direct 10 cases which we have to prepare without any discovery 11 and without any indication of what the RIAA's case 12 would be, confined to a large extent the evidence we 13 may put before you in the direct phase of these 14 proceedings. We have since had an opportunity to 15 analyze and pick apart the RIAA's case in manners that 16 I'll discuss in a moment, but procedurally, there is 17 much evidence and testimony that we may be unable to 18 give you in the direct phase of the case that I urge 19 your indulgence to wait for in the rebuttal phase.

20 Now on to the RIAA's case. First the 21 flaws and the conceptual basis and then I will turn to 22 the flaws in the evidentiary part of the RIAA's case.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 The gist of the RIAA's case as you've heard from 2 everybody today is essentially this. They say you 3 must be guided in setting the rate by the 25, now 26 4 deals that the RIAA succeeded in signing with 5 webcasters. But the governing statutory standard
6 simply cannot fairly be so construed. As Mr. Rich 7 explained, it is important to separate the shall 8 language from the would language and the may language 9 in the governing statutory standard. And without 10 going over that in any detail, I'm just going to pin 11 a couple of things and explain where the RIAA's case 12 fails.

13 Of course, the statute says the Panel 14 shall seek to determine the rate that will be set in 15 a hypothetical willing buyer/willing seller 16 marketplace which the evidence and the precedence will 17 demonstrate is one equivalent to the rate that would 18 eventuate in a freely competitive marketplace. And 19 the statute then goes on to say that the Panel shall 20 base its decision on economic, competitive and 21 programming information of the nature that the statute 22 specifies regarding mandated consideration of the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 promotional value of the webcasters' activities versus 2 any substitution effects or displacement effects 3 flowing therefrom. And it mandates their 4 consideration of the relative costs, risks and 5 investments associated with the transmission services 6 involved and their use of copyrighted works.

7 Finally, and very much in 8 contradistinction, the statute distinguishes from 9 these mandatory considerations by saying that the 10 Panel also may consider the rates and terms under 11 voluntary license agreements only provided, as I'll 12 get to in some detail they are for comparable types of 13 transmission services and under comparable 14 circumstances.

15 With these provisions of the statute in 16 mind, it is apparent that the RIAA conceptual 17 presentation goes off the trolley in the following 18 several respects. First, it ignores the direction to 19 determine rates that would prevail in a hypothetical 20 competitive marketplace in favor of one that 21 replicates the extremely limited universe of deals 22 that the RIAA actually did. I just want to underscore

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 something that Mr. Rich said. If all you are required
2 to do is set a rate by rubber stamping the deals
3 actually secured by the RIAA, there would be no reason 4 for this proceeding at all and we could all go home 5 right now, but that's not what the statute requires.

6 Second, the RIAA case conceptually goes 7 off the trolley in failing meaningfully to take into 8 consideration as the statute mandates the various 9 quote economic, competitive and programming 10 information, unquote, applicable to the parties. In 11 fact, the RIAA does not dispute at all that the 12 broadcasters and webcasters promote rather than 13 displace record sales as Mr. Joseph so eloquently 14 talked about in his opening.

15 And there is no evidence that our clients 16 in terms of what they do cause substitution or 17 displacement. This is not a case about Napster. This 18 is not a case about downloading. This is a case about 19 webcasting and any evidence that you will see is that 20 there is no evidence of substitution or displacement 21 to concern you and where they go off the trolley is 22 they never really engage on the mandated inquiry with

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 respect to promotional value versus substitution and 2 displacement.

3 Next, insofar as the statute requires the 4 Panel to consider the relative costs, risks and 5 investments of the parties in relation to the services 6 that are here at issue, the RIAA entirely ignores this 7 critical comparison in favor of a totally phony 8 construct relating to the differences between -- as I 9 was saying, the RIAA fails to consider the relative 10 costs and risks factor in the proper way by comparing 11 the costs and risks of the labels to the costs and 12 risks of the webcasters in favor of a phony construct 13 they come up with which is a comparison between their 14 costs and risks and the costs and risks of the music 15 publishing business. But the statute doesn't require 16 such a comparison. It requires that you compare the 17 evidence of the costs, risks, investments and the like 18 of our clients and the RIAA and its members in 19 relation to what? In relation to the webcasting 20 business and the webcasting business is use of sound 21 recordings. They don't engage on that at all. The 22 testimony that you will hear will be about all the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 costs and risks significant and substantial as they 2 are across the entire webcaster group and that 3 incrementally there's virtually zero cost and risk 4 associated with the sound recordings utilized in this 5 medium, not in some other medium, but in this medium.

6 You can hear all the stuff in the world
7 about what it costs to sell and distribute sound 8 recordings, physical CDs in the marketplace, and how 9 much more it costs the sound recording owners to do 10 what they do than the publishers pay to do what they 11 do. It's totally irrelevant to the inquiry under the 12 statute.

13 Finally, and most importantly, the RIAA
14 analytical framework goes off the trolley in two 15 significant effects as it relates to the wording of 16 the statute in relation to the Panel's obligation to 17 consider actual voluntary license agreements, secured 18 by the RIAA.

19 First off, the language plainly is 20 permissive, not mandatory, a distinction apparently 21 lost in the RIAA.

22 Second, the Panel may consider such

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 agreements only under conditions where the prior 2 agreements are with comparable transmission services
3 and under comparable circumstances. Two conditions 4 that Mr. Garrett alluded to, but when you hear the 5 evidence, it is clear that the RIAA has never taken 6 into consideration in preparing its model.

7 As I will turn to in a moment, the 8 evidence in fact will demonstrate that the Panel has 9 ample basis to be suspect about whether the various 10 deals secured by the RIAA meet either of those two 11 conditions.

12 Finally, on the conceptual framework, the 13 RIAA is left with its experts, Misterns Nagle and 14 Yerman, to advance RIAA's pricing model based on the 15 handful of deals struck by the RIAA.

16 The Nagle approach, which would permit a 17 monopolist supplier like the RIAA to set a profit-18 maximizing monopolistic rate, plainly is entitled to 19 no credence in this proceeding. For how could a fee 20 designed to replicate a hypothetical competitive 21 market be based on a plainly monopolistic pricing 22 structure?

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Mr. Yerman, meanwhile, would apply the 2 thoroughly inapplicable construct for assessing 3 damages in a patent infringement case to the instant 4 non-infringement situation. His analysis is 5 noteworthy, however, because he validates the view 6 expressed by the broadcaster and webcaster experts 7 that the royalty paid in this case must be a 8 reasonable one.

9 He also expresses the view that fees
10 should be set at a level that would permit webcasters 11 to obtain a profit, in which case he actually 12 conflicts with Mr. Nagle.

13 Enough of the flaws in the conceptual 14 framework. Now the gloves come off, and I can turn to 15 the RIAA's evidence, as it were, what it does and does 16 not reflect. There is no question it does reflect 17 that 25, now 26 as of about ten days ago, companies 18 signed agreements with the RIAA covering their rights 19 to stream sound recordings over the Internet under 20 section 114 of the DMCA.

21 But before getting to the specifics of 22 what those 25 agreements do and do not reflect, let's

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 pause over one astonishing statistic that has been 2 alluded to before. The evidence will demonstrate that 3 fully 1,700-plus separate services filed notices with 4 the Copyright Office of their desire to avail
5 themselves of the statutory license under section 114, 6 covering some 2,282 website URLs. That stat comes 7 from one of the RIAA witnesses, I think it's Mr.
8 Marks' statement. Many of these are for webcasting 9 services under common ownership. But even with that, 10 the figure is staggering.

11 Now against this huge universe of 12 services, potentially availing themselves of the 13 statutory license for which this panel will set a 14 rate, a paltry 25, one percent, have reached a 15 voluntary license agreement with the RIAA.

16 These 25 webcaster agreements the RIAA 17 says should speak for the market as a whole. But we 18 submit to you that the rejection of the RIAA proposal 19 by the predominant massive services speaks much more 20 loudly than the very few that executed licenses with 21 the RIAA. It is far more telling that more than 2,000 22 potential licensees rejected the RIAA profit rate than

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 it is that 25 took it. You will hear from dozens of 2 broadcasters and webcasters as to why they rejected
3 the RIAA proposal.

4 Let's go back now to the 25 license
5 agreements relied upon so pervasively by the RIAA.
6 What do they show or not show, as the case may be? It 7 is true that most of the 25 agreements are at rates on 8 their face that would either start at the per 9 performance rate or the percentage of revenue rate 10 proposed by the RIAA in this case or escalate to that 11 rate by the end of the term. That is the case in fact 12 as it relates to almost all the 25 RIAA licensees, 13 most of which are companies that never streamed, 14 companies that have since gone out of business, or 15 companies so small that no one has ever heard of them, 16 except for one licensee that we have all heard of, 17 Yahoo.

18 Who are these guys, you ask, the RIAA's 25
19 licensees?

20 MR. VON KANN: Who are these guys?

21 MR. STEINTHAL: That's a good question.

22 Who are these guys? I defy most of the people in this

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 room going through the list of one through 25 to say
2 in all candor that they have heard of more than one 3 other than the last. Here they are, presented in 4 alphabetical order, and color-coded to indicate those 5 companies that are now out of the streaming business, 6 those that are in black, those that never streamed, 7 notwithstanding their RIAA license in red, and those 8 of any size that are streaming today.

9 Without meaning to insult anyone, I 10 suspect that unless you are as tied to this case as 11 our staff is, most of these companies, if not all 12 other than the last, you have never heard of.

13 Now while 24 of the 25 existing or defunct 14 companies on this list may have agreed to rates 15 approaching those of the RIAA's proposal, one did not.
16 But I can't say in open court that licensee's name or 17 that licensee's rate, or even give a range of how much 18 different that rate is compared to what the RIAA seeks 19 in this case. Why? Because it is a state secret to 20 the RIAA.

21 Indeed, it was a condition of that 22 licensee's deal that it could not participate in any

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 manner in this CARP, and that it could not cooperate
2 with any party opposing the RIAA in this CARP. Only 3 today, on the verge of the argument, literally ten 4 minutes before openings, did we hear from the RIAA 5 that they had capitulated on a motion we had made to 6 lift his gag order from that licensee's agreement. A 7 lot of good it did us in preparing for today, since by 8 virtue of that clause that they fought us in months of 9 motion practice on, they denied us access and until 10 now, you the possibility of hearing from that 11 licensee.

12 Isn't it interesting? The RIAA comes to 13 you with a model premised on a handful of so-called 14 willing buyer-willing seller transactions. There is 15 only one licensee of that handful of any meaningful 16 size or import in the webcasting industry. As to that 17 licensee, we know the rate is different than that 18 which RIAA claims is suggested by their willing buyer-19 willing seller proposal. If I wanted to clear the 20 courtroom, which I don't, I could tell you who it is 21 and just what fraction of the RIAA asked-for rate is 22 reflected by their deal. But I think you already know

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 that.

2 But the RIAA has not wanted us or you, 3 never mind the public, to hear about why it is that 4 that licensee's rate is what it is. Mind you, that 5 licensee's rate, while much different than the RIAA's 6 requested rate, is hardly a competitive market or 7 desirable rate to the webcasters and broadcasters.

8 I will discuss this further in a few 9 moments, but please don't take my comments as 10 suggesting that that licensee's deal reflects a fair 11 or appropriate rate for everybody else. The evidence 12 will show that it too exceeds by a long shot the 13 appropriate outcome in this case.

14 Obviously you will not hear from us on our 15 direct case about such circumstances since we were 16 denied every and any opportunity to learn anything 17 about it. But we hope that by the time rebuttal rolls 18 around, we will have some more information for you on 19 those issues.

20 Now how significant was the silencing of 21 this licensee to the RIAA's model? As much as I hate 22 to use the word again, staggeringly so. Take a look

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 at the next chart.

2 Obviously we have redacted out the amounts
3 paid by each of the licensees. We have even redacted 4 out the name or names in the pie chart itself. But 5 the chart is incredibly clear about how significant 6 one licensee is to the RIAA model. One licensee has 7 paid 65 percent of the royalties they have collected 8 pursuant to the statutory licenses they have done.

9 It is also interesting that 21 percent
10 were done by companies that are no longer streaming.
11 They are defunct. They are out of the business. The 12 evidence will show that part of the reasons they are 13 out of the business was the weight of carrying the 14 RIAA license that they had to pay.

15 That leaves 14 percent of all their 16 collections from the remainder of those companies that 17 are still active in streaming.

18 What a travesty of justice it would be 19 were an industry-wide statutory rate to be set at the 20 rates agreed to by 24 nondescript companies out of the 21 thousands of potential licensees, whose collective 22 resume indicates that their aggregate fees paid to the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 RIAA across all 24 of them were only one-half of the 2 fees paid by the one licensee we weren't allowed to 3 talk to, and that fully 60 percent of the fees paid by 4 this group of 24 licensees were from licensees that 5 could not survive economically.

6 This leads me to the more general
7 secretive and troublesome modus operandi of the RIAA 8 with respect to these handful of agreements upon which 9 they would premise an industry-wide rate. This is 10 troublesome in particular because the statute says 11 that this panel may consider prior voluntary license 12 agreements only where they are with comparable 13 services that entered into those agreements under 14 comparable circumstances.

15 The Panel and we can only know whether the 16 25 licensees are comparable services that entered into 17 those agreements under comparable circumstances to 18 those of the great unwashed, the thousands that did 19 not execute RIAA licenses, if we know all about those 20 services and the circumstances that led them and 21 motivated them to enter into the agreements they 22 signed with the RIAA. But the RIAA made sure that

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 knowledge about those services and their circumstances 2 would not be freely available to the broadcasters and 3 webcasters.

4 Each agreement upon which the RIAA relies 5 provides for a one-way confidentiality provision that 6 allowed the RIAA to present the agreements as evidence 7 in this CARP proceeding specifically, while silencing 8 the licensee from having any communications with any 9 third parties about the terms and conditions of their 10 RIAA licenses.

11 The result was on April 11th, RIAA
12 presented its direct case, relying on its agreements 13 with the 25 licensees, claiming they constituted the 14 best evidence of a generally applicable marketplace
15 rate. RIAA in so doing presented testimony
16 essentially from one person, Steven Marks, the RIAA's 17 lead negotiator for the proposition that these 25 18 agreements reflected a willing buyer, willing seller 19 standard that is generally applicable to all the 20 thousands of broadcasters and webcasters that filed 21 notices to avail themselves of the statutory license.

22 Astonishingly, Mr. Marks in his testimony

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 speaks not only for the RIAA as to the willing 2 seller's perspective, but he also purports to speak; 3 albeit entirely on a hearsay basis, for various 4 webcasters that entered into the RIAA licenses as to 5 their perspectives and motivations.

6 This modus operandi of the RIAA is 7 particularly disturbing in a proceeding like this 8 where there is no subpoena power and no third party 9 discovery. The RIAA essentially stacked the deck with 10 a proposed willing buyer willing seller standard under 11 circumstances where the Panel has been presented with 12 testimony only from those on one side of that 13 equation, the seller.

14 We had to make a motion to the Copyright
15 Office seeking the RIAA to waive the confidentiality 16 provisions I talked about, or in the alternative, to 17 strike the prior voluntary licenses upon which RIAA 18 relies just to be able to give those licensees a 19 comfort level that they could speak with us without 20 being in violation of their RIAA agreements.

21 We made the motion. The RIAA ultimately 22 capitulated as to all except the one up there, which

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 as I said, they capitulated on today. But it has 2 since balked about the manner in which we may provide 3 assurances to the licensees that they are free to 4 speak with us.

5 Imagine the following situation. People
6 sign these agreements with confidentiality clauses 7 that say they can't talk to anybody. That is what 8 they know. We can't go talk to them. Make a motion.
9 We finally get the ability to go talk to them. Then 10 the RIAA says you can't show them the order saying 11 that it is okay to talk to us. They made a motion to 12 redact the order which we were going to give to the 13 licensees so we could give them a comfort level it's 14 okay to talk to us.

15 Worse than all of that is the confluence 16 of all the circumstances. It took us until just a few 17 weeks ago to get the resolution of the motion which 18 would give us even the possibility of talking to these 19 25 licensees.

20 Of course by then, the fact is that many 21 of these licensees are defunct. Of course we have to 22 overcome the reluctance of third parties to come

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 forward where there is no subpoena power to compel
2 them.

3 The reality is that it is extremely 4 difficult, and certainly impossible on our direct 5 case, for us to present evidence specifically from 6 these 25 licensees. That being said, we will be able 7 to demonstrate to this panel that there are 8 fundamental bases upon which to be skeptical about 9 whether many or even all of the prior licenses upon 10 which the RIAA seeks to rely were with "comparable" 11 licensees who are under "comparable" circumstances.
12 I will talk about this a little bit more in a few 13 minutes.

14 One has to wonder though fundamentally if 15 all these deals are truly reflective of a free willing 16 buyer, willing seller marketplace, why has the RIAA 17 gone to every length to prevent us and you from 18 hearing from these licensees? If it is truly willing 19 buyers, why did they go to all those lengths to shut 20 them up?

21 Now moving past the troublesome efforts of 22 the RIAA to silence the licensees, what do the 25

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 agreements reflect? As you will hear from Professor 2 Jaffe, these agreements may in fact be between willing 3 buyers and willing sellers, but they are not 4 agreements indicative of a freely competitive 5 marketplace rate.

6 I'm going to go through a few examples to 7 dramatize this situation. Take the following example.
8 Suppose you are a passenger on a plane that crashes in 9 the desert. You go days without water. You come upon 10 a limited source of water. Surely, you will be 11 willing to pay an amount well in excess of the normal 12 marketplace rate for water. The amount you pay is a 13 willing buyer, willing seller transaction. There's no 14 question about it. But not under freely competitive 15 market circumstances.

16 Very funny, yes? We think that much of 17 your proposal, I might say.

18 MS. ROSEN: I bet.

19 MR. STEINTHAL: Surely the buyer's
20 circumstances in this example, which would motivate 21 him willingly to pay lots more than would be paid in 22 a freely competitive market, are different from those

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 of the general public. Surely no one seriously would 2 suggest that the amount paid by that willing buyer to 3 that willing seller is indicative of the reasonable 4 rate for all consumers of water.

5 Now let's take a less dramatic example.
6 Hopefully it won't cause any laughter. Suppose you 7 are late for a plane and you come to a 50 cent toll on 8 the way to the airport. Suppose further that there is 9 a huge line at the toll, virtually ensuring you are 10 going to miss your plane. Your circumstances are such 11 that if presented with the opportunity to pay 12 multiples more than 50 cents, even 30 times more, to 13 use a multiple that comes to mind, you would gladly 14 pay that rate to skip the line and enable you to catch 15 the plane. The 15 dollars, 30 times greater than the 16 50 cent rate, would be a willing buyer, willing seller 17 rate, but not under freely competitive circumstances.

18 Now let's get even closer to home.
19 Suppose you are an Internet music service that has 20 features which the RIAA has told you are "interactive" 21 and which would make you ineligible for the statutory 22 license, and thus, infringing. Then suppose the RIAA

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 says to you, if you tinker with your service a little 2 bit and you pay me X, we will treat you as non-3 interactive, and thus eligible for the statutory 4 license at that X rate.

5 Surely, the motivation and circumstances
6 of that webcaster, threatened with infringement 7 litigation unless it pays the rate, cannot fairly be 8 deemed comparable to the vast preponderance of 9 webcasters which have no allegedly interactive 10 features. Yet the RIAA, without disclosing such 11 circumstances or motivations to you in its direct 12 case, would inappropriately urge this panel to rely on 13 agreements secured under precisely these types of 14 circumstances in setting a rate for all broadcasters 15 and webcasters, irrespective of their very different 16 circumstances and motivations.

17 There are other examples which because of 18 the nature of these proceedings, I urge you to be 19 patient to hear about. I assure you, however, that 20 there will be significant evidence about the 21 motivations and circumstances surrounding the 25 22 license agreements upon which RIAA relies that will

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 make you very skeptical about whether their 2 circumstances were comparable to the circumstances of 3 the great unwashed that have not executed RIAA license
4 agreements.

5 MR. GULIN: I am sorry to interrupt. When 6 you just mentioned what if there was a threat against 7 the webcasters that you may have some interactive 8 elements and perhaps if we work something out, you 9 won't have those interactive elements. Are you 10 speculating now that this is something that could have 11 happened? Or are you telling us that that is in the 12 evidence you are going to be presenting?

13 MR. STEINTHAL: That is going to be 14 evidence I am going to give you.

15 The examples I recently ran through of 16 varying circumstances among different buyers, 17 different "willing buyers," reflect but one set of 18 reasons to be skeptical about the RIAA's approach in 19 seeking to set an industry-wide fee based on 20 agreements with a mere 25 out of over 2,000 potential 21 broadcaster and webcaster licensees. But it is not 22 even necessary to demonstrate such special and unique

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 circumstances in order to demonstrate the unfairness
2 of the RIAA's self-selected approach.

3 The economic evidence will reflect that in 4 any marketplace, there will be a range of willing 5 buyers, a range of willing buyer prices. Sometimes it 6 is called a distribution curve. As the jargon goes, 7 some people are willing to pay more than the free 8 market price for a product, and some are unwilling to 9 purchase a product unless the price is lowered below 10 that rate.

11 What the RIAA has chosen to do is what in 12 the jargon is price discriminate. We didn't have time 13 to get a chart on this, so I just drew one up.

14 This is your normal distribution curve in 15 an economic analysis. The price is going to be set at 16 the bell number, where most of the people buying 17 products are going to pay for a product. Sure, there 18 are going to be some people that have certain 19 circumstances, usually a lack of time, where they 20 might go to a store and not care that they are paying 21 higher than what the normal sales price is for a 22 product. But for the most part, the product price is

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 going to be driven by where the normal distribution 2 is. There are going to be some people that at that 3 price are going to be unwilling to buy.

4 So what has the RIAA done? The picked off 5 25 people up here out of 2,000. They have taken the 6 people willing, for whatever their circumstances and 7 motivations, willing to pay a price. They are now 8 saying that because I got the top part of the 9 distribution curve, it is fair and appropriate to 10 saddle everybody with that. That flies in the face of 11 normal economics 101. You can't do it, especially in 12 a situation where you are dealing with an entity like 13 the RIAA that has huge marketplace power.

14 One more thing I should mention before 15 moving on. The interactivity example in the question 16 from Judge Gulin brings to mind the fact that several 17 label executives will be testifying about non-18 statutory license deals, including for interactive 19 music on demand service, music video streaming 20 services and the like. Mr. Garrett went through that 21 whole array of different kinds of licenses that you 22 are going to hear about.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 We are truly baffled as to why the RIAA is 2 going down that road. Plainly, these are 3 circumstances in which the licensee must secure a 4 voluntary license with the label, lest it be at risk 5 of copyright infringement. The lack of a compulsory 6 license alternative, imperfect as that alternative may 7 be, puts the webcaster at far more risk in the absence 8 of a negotiated agreement.

9 Hence, the label, when we are dealing with 10 non-statutory licenses, has much enhanced bargaining 11 leverage and can be expected to drive a much higher 12 than compulsory rate. The non-statutory licenses, 13 whether they are 30, 60, or 100, are irrelevant to 14 your inquiry. This is a statutory license proceeding.
15 The economics are totally different between a 16 statutory license setting and a non-statutory license 17 setting.

18 All right. Moving back to the economic 19 and relevant jurisprudence alluded to by Mr. Rich for 20 a brief moment.

21 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Mr. Steinthal, I'm 22 sorry. I need to interrupt you for a minute. We are

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 caught in conflicting interests. On the one hand, we 2 want to know and learn as much about this case as we 3 can. On the other hand, we know that the whole 4 operation is under tight time constraints. We agreed 5 prior to today for two hours per side, cutting out the 6 break time and all of that. Your five speakers have 7 collectively now used that time.

8 I think that we have at least two 9 possibilities. One is additional time for you now, 10 providing additional time for the owners and 11 performers, or cutting this off relatively quickly.

12 Can I ask in terms of your presentation, 13 what additional --

14 MR. STEINTHAL: I can wrap up in five 15 minutes.

16 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Five minutes. Then 17 would that be acceptable?

18 MR. GARRETT: I have no objection.

19 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Okay. Thank you
20 very much.

21 MR. STEINTHAL: Indeed I will just skip 22 past a little part in the interests of getting there.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 Let me conclude by focusing for one moment
2 on the actual rate proposed by the RIAA, the four-3 tenths to five-tenths per stream or the 15 percent of 4 revenue. We will demonstrate that these numbers bear 5 no semblance of reasonableness either when viewed 6 against other comparable intellectual property 7 benchmarks or evaluated in the context of whether 8 broadcasters and webcasters can effectively offer 9 their services at all under such an economic burden.

10 Mr. Rich talked about the analogous 11 musical works benchmarks. The evidence will show that 12 the performances of musical works embedded in sound 13 recordings, the performance of which are at issue in 14 this case, are priced in the range of either three to 15 three-and-a-half percent of revenues or less than a 16 quarter of a cent per listener hour. Both these 17 figures are multiples less than the fee sought by the 18 RIAA.

19 One way to see how devastating and 20 ludicrous the RIAA's proposal would be is through the 21 following statistic. As Mr. Joseph stressed, sound 22 recording performances are free for broadcast radio

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealgross.com

1 precisely because of the enormous promotional benefit
2 derived by the labels from the air play of sound 3 recordings. Let us assume that everyone listening to 4 terrestrial broadcast radio today started listening 5 tomorrow to the same radio programming and the same 6 radio stations, by via their PCs instead of their 7 portable radios. Same programming, same audience.
8 The RIAA's proposal, at four-tenths of a cent per 9 performance, would yield a fee that is phenomenal, of 10 more than $5 billion for that which is free today by 11 transmitting by radio, terrestrial radio instead of on 12 the Internet.

13 Now if you use a 15 percent of revenue 14 number instead of a four-tenths of a cent per 15 performance, it is still a staggering number, $1.7 16 billion for that which is free today because of the 17 promotional value of air play, and the fact that 18 congressionally, it has been determined that that is 19 enough compensation for purposes of rewarding the 20 sound recording owners and artists associated with air 21 play on radio.

22 Now how can these figures be rationalized

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 under the DMCA? They can't. I urge you to reflect on 2 the testimony of Professors Jaffe and Fisher and the 3 history of the DMCA. As this evidence and the 4 statutory history reflect, the very creation of the 5 sound recording performance right was meant to protect 6 the record labels from the loss of album sales that 7 might derive from one of two different concepts, 8 either from digital quality copying or a risk of 9 substitution or displacement from on-demand types of 10 transmissions.

11 Nobody really knew exactly how music would 12 be transmitted in all its manifestations on the 13 Internet. The compulsory license was created to give 14 the labels the opportunity to be compensated in the 15 event either of those two risks coming into play. It 16 was decidedly not created to provide the record labels 17 with a windfall of the nature they are seeking in this 18 case, which bears no relation to either of the risks 19 that the compulsory license was intended to protect 20 against.

21 You will hear testimony from all the 22 broadcasters and webcasters about how the RIAA rate

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 would make webcasting entirely uneconomic, and likely 2 drive them out of business, the path of many of the 3 RIAA's prior licensees.

4 So you may ask yourself, why would the 5 RIAA seek such a high rate, so high that all of our 6 clients might have to cease webcasting? It seems 7 counter-intuitive, since some royalty, even at a lower 8 rate, would seem better than none. Well, the answer 9 is in a word that I heard from Mr. Garrett, control.
10 It is not counter-intuitive if you keep in mind that 11 another way to view this is as a matter of the label's 12 desire to control the space as much as it is about the 13 rate.

14 You will see the evidence that the major 15 labels themselves are getting into the Internet music 16 space. If they succeed in establishing a statutory 17 license rate at or anywhere remotely near the one they 18 are requesting, they will succeed in driving most of 19 the existing non-label controlled webcasters out of 20 this space.

21 That would be a horrible result to 22 everyone, except the RIAA's major label members. It

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 would deprive the public of the types of choices that 2 the DMCA was designed in part to give them. It would 3 be bad for artists as well, in so far as it would 4 limit the avenues for promoting their music other than 5 on label-controlled websites. That is why we have two 6 artists, including Alanis Morissette, testifying on our 7, behalf. Of course, it would be devastating for all 8 the broadcasters and webcasters participating in this 9 case.

10 In concluding, we believe you will see 11 that the RIAA's case is largely a charade. It 12 purports to rely on a series of so-called willing 13 buyer, willing seller transactions. But at the same 14 time, the RIAA seeks to silence the willing buyers so 15 that you can hear only one side of the story.

16 As a litigator, it frustrates me to no end 17 that the truth is being buried beneath an avalanche of 18 confidentiality clauses and under circumstances where 19 there is no subpoena power. With subpoena power, the 20 house of cards built by the RIAA around this self-21 selected tiny handful of deals would tumble instantly.
22 But even without that tool, we will demonstrate to the

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Panel's satisfaction that the RIAA's case is utterly 2 lacking in substance.

3 Thank you for your time.

4 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you very
5 much.

6 We knew at the outset and we discussed on 7 June 25th that we had something of a marathon task
8 ahead of us. That continues through today. There 9 were a number of procedural matters that we wanted to 10 take up and have some discussion of at the end of the 11 day.

12 Do you want to take a brief recess before?
13 Okay. We will take a very brief recess until about 14 5:50, and ask you to take a look at the list of issues 15 that were provided by the Copyright Office staff last 16 week.

17 (Whereupon, the proceedings went off the 18 record at 5:41 p.m. and went back on the record at 19 5:51 p.m.)

20 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: We would like to 21 add one short item to the top of our list for 22 discussion. It is primarily in the form of a request,

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 Mr. Garrett, to you. We are aware of the discussion
2 of the issue of confidentiality with NPR and Ms. Leary 3 and her role and participation in this. We are 4 interested obviously in having as full and complete a 5 presentation of everything as we can. We are hoping 6 that it might be possible for you and her to have some 7 further discussions about whether there is some kind 8 of practical format under which she could be enabled 9 to participate, given NPR financial constraints and 10 the rest, with a clear demarkation, some form of a 11 firewall that would make you and your colleagues feel 12 very comfortable in protections. This is really only 13 in the nature of a request for a further conversation 14 and exploration of possibilities in that regard.

15 MR. GARRETT: Certainly. If that is the 16 Panel's wish, we will do that. I will only say that 17 we did have those discussions before, and I thought 18 that we had resolved them. There is an order or a 19 stipulation that we had entered into filed with the 20 Copyright Office that addressed that on July 11th, but 21 if the sense of the Panel is as you have stated, I 22 will be happy to talk with her again.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. VON KANN: We feel it is going to be 2 awkward if she did today, and then somebody has got to 3 bring her up to speed so she can comment. I think our 4 inclination would be to see if she could be treated 5 the same as any other, as if she were outside counsel, 6 with whatever protections are necessary to effectuate
7 that. We don't know the specifics.

8 MR. GARRETT: There is no intent here to 9 single out Ms. Leary. I think our concern was 10 broader. It is that we didn't want, and I don't think 11 the other side wanted, in-house parties to be able to 12 have access to this restricted material for very good 13 and legitimate reasons. We live under that same rule 14 because I would love to have the folks from RIAA here 15 helping in assisting in the preparation of many of 16 these things and we can't have that.

17 As I say, we did try to resolve it. I 18 really thought until Ms. Leary had walked up earlier 19 today, that we had resolved it to everyone's 20 satisfaction in this July 11th order, but I will be 21 happy to go back and take another crack at it.

22 MS. LEARY: I would note that I had a

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 conversation at the break with Hillary Rosen. When I 2 first discussed this with Mr. Garrett, I had first 3 raised it with Ms. Woods and then Mr. Garrett back 4 right after the April cases were filed. I was told 5 that they had checked with their labelers, and that 6 the labels were unwilling to waive the restrictions.
7 I offered to allow their counsel to have access to any 8 portions of our case that were restricted. At that 9 point, there were portions of the case that were 10 restricted. They have all been removed, so that it 11 was fair.

12 Ms. Rosen mentioned to me at the break
13 that she was totally unaware that the circumstances 14 existed. So perhaps conversations could be had with 15 her by Mr. Garrett. But she seemed to want to do 16 something to cure the situation. So perhaps Ms. Rosen 17 was not consulted when Mr. Garrett was consulting his 18 labels, but maybe that is an appropriate way to go 19 now.

20 MR. GARRETT: I don't know who to believe 21 more, the Panel or my own client. We're in a 22 difficult position. Normally I am present when people

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 talk to my client about matters related to this, when 2 other lawyers talk to my client about matters like 3 this.

4 But as I said, I understand the sense of 5 the Panel here. I will do my best to accommodate you.

6 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Thank you very
7 much.

8 We wanted to skip around on the list 9 somewhat and in part talk about number three, the 10 division of time, because we found among the Panel we 11 had some different understandings of exactly what it 12 was you might have in mind.

13 Perhaps we can hear from you first.
14 What's the deal?

15 MR. JACOBY: We have discussed it. The 16 announcement that was issued by the Copyright Office 17 does not accurately reflect the understanding that was 18 agreed upon, so that probably everybody is operating 19 the same assumption when they read this.

20 The agreement was that we would divide the 21 time equally, considering your own direct case and 22 your cross examination of the other witnesses rather

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 than as stated here, where we are dividing the time 2 based on your direct case, including the cross time by 3 opposing side. That would give neither party the 4 ability, neither side to control in effect.

5 MR. VON KANN: In effect, each of you owns 6 a lectern for 90 hours?

7 MR. JACOBY: That is correct, for as much 8 as we want to devote on our direct case or on the 9 cross examination of the other side.

10 The second aspect of it, and I think most 11 of these things then just clarify very quickly. We 12 have calculated that as 90 hours, you may recall the 13 calculation based on 30 days of hearings, assuming six 14 hours per day for the examination and cross 15 examination by the parties to the proceeding, assuming 16 that there would be additional time taken with 17 procedural matters as well as with any examination 18 that the members of the Panel wish to do, which would 19 take us beyond the six hours today. But we were 20 assuming, you will recall, we I think talked about 21 starting at 9:00 in the morning.

22 MR. VON KANN: Yes.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. JACOBY: That should give us a day
2 that might run seven hours of hearing time or what, 3 depending on how much procedural or arbitrator
4 questioning might be involved.

5 The other aspect of it are that we had 6 agreed that each side will essentially police 7 themselves with respect to the various parties that 8 might be involved in examination or cross examination.
9 We are responsible as a side for those 90 hours, 10 whether we have in some cases just one person cross 11 examine a witness, in some cases there may be three or 12 four. It depends on the matter and whether different 13 interests or different people are taking care of 14 different interest. But in the end, we pay the piper, 15 because if someone takes more time than they should, 16 we are going to end up, it is running against our 17 clock.

18 Obviously, we have a very strong incentive 19 on both sides not to overlap among cross examiners.
20 If there are different cross examiners, that they try 21 to be discrete as their subject matter, limit the 22 extent of overlap to the maximum extent that we can to

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 avoid using up the clock.

2 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Now is there a 3 provision for each of you to be timekeeper for the 4 other as well?

5 MR. JACOBY: We didn't come up with a 6 solution. We had actually hoped that the court 7 reporting service could provide that kind of a 8 facility, but we have been told it could not.

9 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: They are really 10 under the gun for an incredible marathon as it is. So 11 I think putting additional burden there is not the 12 best way to go.

13 MR. JACOBY: Well, there are technologies 14 available to do it, but apparently the reporter who is 15 involved here doesn't have those technologies.

16 In any event, what we have chosen to do 17 again by discussion, would be that each side would 18 designate each day one or more persons to serve as a 19 timekeeper for that side, whether it be a legal 20 assistant or attorney or what. I guess each day it 21 may be someone different. But that we would each then 22 keep a clock basically. Then at the end of the day,

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 the timekeepers would match up their records. If 2 there is any discrepancy of any significance, then we 3 will have to address it.

4 MR. STEINTHAL: We've got arbitration.

5 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Mediation, 6 hopefully.

7 MR. JACOBY: Hopefully it will be close 8 enough so that we don't have to get involved in any 9 ancillary proceedings with what the timekeeping is.

10 MS. WOODS: We do think we need to do it 11 on a daily basis.

12 MR. JACOBY: Yes. It's a safe way.
13 Whoever is designated at the end of the day will sit 14 down with one another, see how it matches up. If 15 there is a problem, then deal with it then or the next 16 morning if we have to, but hopefully we won't have to 17 do it at all.

18 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: I think it would be 19 helpful also, just as a housekeeping matter, if either 20 at the end of the day or perhaps first thing the next 21 morning, somebody could give us a sheet that says here 22 is where we stand.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. JACOBY: Right. We will create a 2 running log on top of the daily I guess just to ensure 3 that everybody is on the same page all the way 4 through.

5 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: So if each has 90
6 hours and you choose to have 30 for your direct, then 7 you have got 60 for your cross, and you will keep 8 track of how it is divided among your colleagues.

9 MR. JACOBY: Yes. Ultimately, the total 10 that we each have separately is 90 hours, whether 11 questioning our own witnesses or questioning the other 12 side's witnesses.

13 MR. VON KANN: Does the rule about or the 14 provision about you can have as many cross examiners 15 as you want apply also to direct? Or have you got a 16 convention as to the direct only one attorney will put 17 on a particular witness?

18 MR. JACOBY: We didn't actually discuss 19 it. I don't know that there is --

20 MR. GULIN: Let's start with that premise.
21 Are you saying that you can have as many cross 22 examiners as you want on your side?

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 MR. JACOBY: Yes. I guess each side can 2 make a decision if in fact there are different 3 interests, there are different parties that have 4 different interests here. A particular witness may 5 generate issues that different people are addressing.

6 MR. GULIN: Clearly, there are some 7 parties with different interest within your group.
8 But it seems like we are heading towards a situation 9 where we are only having two sides here. We are going 10 to identify exhibits either as copyright owners, 11 performers versus services. I am not sure we can do 12 that. Can we, in this proceeding? I mean aren't you 13 going to want to identify who is representing what 14 parties? When we put an exhibit into evidence, 15 shouldn't it be identified by that party who is doing 16 the cross examination?

17 In other words, it seems to me that it 18 might be helpful to have a little more structure to 19 this, to have maybe an order of who are the groups 20 that are cross examining rather than simply say you 21 may throw 40 at one witness, and you may have ten for 22 a different witness.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. JACOBY: No, we are not going to do
2 that. We are not going to do that.

3 MR. GULIN: Well are you saying that you
4 may have two attorneys representing the same party 5 doing cross examination?

6 MR. JACOBY: There may be broadcaster
7 interests on particular issues that are somewhat 8 different from the webcasters. You have the NPR 9 interests. You have the business establishment group.
10 In some cases, they may have different interests to 11 pursue in a cross examination. Theoretically, you 12 could have several people cross examining. The same 13 is true on the RIAA.

14 MR. GULIN: I guess what I'm saying is 15 would it be helpful and useful to identify who these 16 groups are now so that when the time comes for an 17 attorney to do a cross examination, we will know who 18 that attorney is representing, who his parties are, so 19 that we can identify witnesses properly, rather than 20 willy nilly kind of cross examination.

21 MR. STEINTHAL: I think that it's easy 22 enough with respect to NPR and Wiley Rine, and even

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 David and Sandra in terms of that part of the DMX AEI
2 case. I think it is a little bit more difficult, 3 although we are going to try to segregate it, I mean 4 I have been more involved in the "webcaster" side.
5 Bruce Rich has been more involved on the broadcaster 6 side, but the experts obviously span both. So it is 7 hard for us to say we are affiliated with this group 8 and not that group.

9 So I think we can identify certainly 10 exhibits by group. I mean I don't see why we can't 11 just use a sequential numbering in broadcaster, 12 webcaster exhibits, you know, one through whatever.
13 If it turns out that it is a clear channel document, 14 then it will just go into clear channels post trial 15 findings with a broadcaster, webcaster exhibit number.
16 I mean I don't know why that --

17 MR. JACOBY: I guess the first question 18 really is what is the significance in terms of how you 19 designate exhibits? We could just have SG service 20 group generally for the numbers and go one, two, 21 three, four. If it's admitted into evidence, it's in 22 evidence in the proceeding.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: We know we have the 2 cops over here, the copyright owners and performers.

3 MR. GARRETT: That's true. I like the 4 acronym.

5 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: You have had, I
6 think, suggestion.

7 MR. GARRETT: I was just going to say we 8 have already started marking all of our exhibits as 9 RIAA exhibit, not as copyright owners and performers 10 exhibits. I had certainly contemplated, unless this 11 is a problem for the Panel, to continue to mark our 12 exhibits as RIAA exhibits. Should any of my colleagues 13 introduce anything in their cross examinations and 14 they would mark it AFTRA or AFIM or AFM, as the case 15 may be.

16 Let me also say we don't have an objection 17 to having multiple parties cross examine, but there is 18 a limit to that. We recognize that they may have 19 different and distinct interests on the other side of 20 the table. If there is a matter that affects one 21 group differently than the other, then those two 22 groups should both have the right to cross examine.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 It is going to come out of their 90 hours. But on the 2 other hand, if there really isn't a basis to 3 distinguish and it's just ganging up on one witness 4 here, having somebody go 15 hours and let them be a 5 tag team, that's not something we are agreeing to.

6 MR. GULIN: Trial strategy enters into 7 this. That is why I think it is relevant to say how 8 many rounds of cross examination are appropriate for 9 a given side based upon how many different interest 10 that side has.

11 Now I think you started out by saying you 12 don't have any objection to them simply marking their 13 exhibits as services, the services exhibits in cross 14 examination, but you do have a problem with some type 15 of limitation on the number of rounds of cross 16 examination. Can we get from your side some idea of 17 how many different separate and distinct interests are 18 there within your side? I think it would be fair, 19 would it not, to limit you to that number of rounds of 20 cross examination?

21 MR. JACOBY: The maximum it conceivably 22 would be is four. I can assure you that for the vast

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 majority of witnesses, we are not going to have four.

2 MR. VON KANN: The four are webcasters,
3 broadcasters, business services, and NPR?

4 MR. JACOBY: Correct.

5 MR. VON KANN: There really are those four 6 components.

7 MR. JACOBY: That's right.

8 MR. VON KANN: Is there any problem, maybe 9 it doesn't make a problem, if your exhibits come in 10 sort of blanket, and then NPR is sort of stuck with 11 some exhibit that maybe came in from somebody else 12 that isn't really particularly helpful to them.
13 Should these be segmented a little bit, NPR's 14 exhibits, webcasters, broadcasters, services, or 15 whatever, business.

16 MR. JACOBY: I guess if they all agree 17 that they want to have all their exhibits and be bound 18 by each other's exhibits, that is fine, but it seems 19 like it could create some legal problems for some of 20 the parties.

21 MR. GULIN: Maybe it's not an issue.

22 MR. JACOBY: I think we have over reacted.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 If they are in the record, they are in the record. If 2 they are valid evidence, you will have to make a 3 decision as to what they are valid. If a particular 4 party, for example, if something is put in by the 5 broadcasters and webcasters and NPR says that's fine, 6 but that is not relevant to our situation, they will 7 be able to say that in their briefing. It is still in 8 the evidence in the total record of the case. You are 9 not creating separate records for different parties.
10 You may be issuing different rates for different 11 parties.

12 MR. GULIN: So that this point, you can't 13 foresee a situation where an exhibit might be helpful 14 to one party but detrimental to another party within 15 your side?

16 MS. LEARY: No. If we saw the need for a 17 conflict, I think we would really raise that very 18 early on.

19 MR. GULIN: How would we resolve it? If 20 we have been naming all the exhibits as the services 21 exhibits?

22 MS. LEARY: Services exhibit, except not

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 sponsored by public radio, something like that.

2 MR. JACOBY: Just note on the record if 3 such a situation arose.

4 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: It sounds like as 5 a practical matter you don't anticipate that arising 6 and this is the way that we could deal with it if it 7 were.

8 MS. LEARY: The litigation with the RIAA 9 is our chief focus rather than the lateral argument on 10 this side.

11 MR. GARRETT: They are all united in 12 hating us.

13 (Laughter.)

14 MR. VON KANN: Can we move back to Mr.
15 Garrett's point about ganging up? I think we may need 16 -- it strikes me that we might need to talk about that 17 a little bit.

18 I could see a situation in which Steve 19 Marks comes along and you decide to devote 30 hours to 20 cross examining him. One after another, everybody on 21 this side of the room that can think of anything to 22 ask Steve Marks asks it, and you decide to really make

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 -- if that is within your contemplation, that is I 2 guess your deal. I am not sure we would interfere 3 with it.

4 MR. JACOBY: As we said, there is really 5 an maximum of four interests on our side. There are 6 four parties at the table on the other side. Frankly, 7 the suggestion of doing that kind of teaming up will 8 be opaque to you and will not be appreciated. The 9 same would be true if the other side did it to our 10 witnesses.

11 MR. VON KANN: Do we need to have a rule 12 or an understanding that only one attorney for each of 13 those four components will be permitted to cross 14 examine? So if one of you gets up and you are from 15 the webcaster group, you can't put three more 16 webcaster attorneys in there to talk about. You can 17 have one webcaster guy and one broadcaster, and one 18 service whatever.

19 MR. RICH: It strikes me, if I may, that 20 this is a situation where the adage "if it ain't 21 broke, don't fix it," may come into play. I suspect 22 there won't be any abuse of it by either side.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. JOSEPH: There are two different firms
2 representing radio broadcasters. We are certainly 3 coordinating. We are going to make every effort to 4 make sure that we coordinate.

5 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: I suspect that the 6 discipline of the 90 hours is going to eliminate 7 enough.

8 MR. GULIN: Can we agree though that there 9 is a maximum of four rounds of cross examination per 10 side? It seems to apply to both sides?

11 MS. WOODS: And Judge Gulin, I take it by 12 four rounds you mean four cross examiners. I guess we 13 had previously termed as single round --

14 MR. GULIN: I'm sorry. I mean four 15 different cross examiners of the same witness within 16 the same round of cross examination.

17 MS. WOODS: We do contemplate the 18 possibility of redirect and recross, which we have had 19 in previous proceedings.

20 MR. JACOBY: I think we agreed that 21 redirect and recross would be more than you would want 22 to bear. Beyond that, someone better have an

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 extraordinary reason for asking permission.

2 MR. GULIN: So we are going to identify 3 exhibits on this side as the services.

4 MR. JACOBY: SG, is that all right? SX?
5 SX.

6 MR. GULIN: Love it.

7 MR. JACOBY: Fill in the blanks. SX, 1, 8 2, 3. Then if there's a problem with one --

9 MR. GULIN: Okay. You still want to 10 maintain your integrity over here with respect to 11 individual names?

12 MR. GARRETT: I have never been accused of 13 having that much integrity before. I think yes. If 14 we start, I don't want to be too narrowly focused on 15 this, but I mean we started out labeling everything 16 RIAA exhibit, and then we gave it D for direct case 17 and either a P for a public exhibit, or R for 18 restricted, so that we can easily identify which 19 exhibits are restricted, which ones are public. What 20 we will simply do is add an X to that numbering system 21 here.

22 Let me also say that I don't think there

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 is anything that we are proposing here that limits the 2 authority of the Panel here under section 251.47(j) to 3 limit cross examinations where in your judgement you 4 thought it was cumulative or caused undue delay. I 5 suspect all of us would want to be free to make the 6 argument that this is now a second or a third round of 7 cross examination from someone who really does not 8 have a separate interest in what they are doing.

9 MR. VON KANN: Or even if they do have a 10 separate interest, we have heard enough.

11 MR. GARRETT: Exactly.

12 MR. VON KANN: At some point cumulative 13 and duplicative cross examination has to be cut off, 14 no matter what their interests are.

15 MR. GARRETT: To accommodate everyone on 16 Mr. Marks, I will plan only a 15 minute direct exam so 17 that he is in good shape.

18 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Great.

19 MR. VON KANN: Can we pick up just one 20 thing that Mr. Rich said that I think is worth just 21 briefly noting? That is, that the Panel is very 22 pleased that you all have been able to generally work

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 this out by agreement. As much as possible, we do not 2 intend to tamper with or upset any deals that you have 3 worked out. We just want to understand what they are.

4 MR. RICH: At the same time, you know none
5 of us is shy to bring issues.

6 MR. VON KANN: We are delighted, and we 7 hope that will continue on as many of these kind of 8 administrative matters as you can reach agreement on.
9 Our inclination is to try to support that as much as 10 we can.

11 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Absolutely.

12 Also, in the administrative vein, we 13 noticed with regard to the motion that was filed on 14 the 27th with regard to limiting portions or 15 confidentiality, you appear to have a pretty carefully 16 thought out schedule of witnesses that goes down 17 through August 13th and who you think will be on on 18 what day. It would be very helpful to us to know on 19 the one hand sort of the master plan, and then at 20 least on the start of each Monday morning or whatever, 21 here's the adjustments, if any, that we know about for 22 the week. Obviously we want to stay flexible, but it

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 can also be very helpful to us and everybody I think 2 to know who is contemplated. Thank you very much.

3 Related to the overall question of the 90 4 hours, we thought it only fair to share with you our 5 tentative thinking on the death march of the schedule.

6 MR. VON KANN: Can I just ask one question 7 about the paper we just got?

8 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Oh yes, the 17th.

9 MR. VON KANN: Why is the 17th blank?

10 MS. WOODS: That just means that RIAA 11 expects to finish its case on the 16th, so we would 12 expect witnesses from the other side to start on the 13 17th, and we don't know their schedule.

14 MR. VON KANN: Excellent. Okay.

15 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: We are anticipating 16 in order for you to be sure to each get your full 90 17 hours and for us to have some small questioning, but 18 to have adequate time for discussion of these 19 procedural type matters, that we have been thinking 20 about a tentative sort of presumptive schedule that 21 would produce about seven hours a day of quality time 22 together. Actually seven hours for testimony and 15

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 minutes for procedure. It is in a framework that 2 would start at 9:00 and end at 6:00. We would like to 3 put this out for you to reflect on and give us 4 reactions.

5 We wanted to start promptly at 9:00 each 6 morning. We are thinking in terms of taking the first 7 15 minutes for procedural matters, announcements, 8 administrative housekeeping, so that we all know sort 9 of whether there are changes for the day.

10 And that we would plan to have the first 11 testimony block go from 9:15 to 10:30, with the idea 12 of a 15 minute break at that point. Then going 10:45 13 to 12:15. Then breaking for lunch for an hour, 12:15 14 to 1:15. With the next testimony block being 1:15 to 15 2:30, with a 15 minute break. Then 2:45 to 4:15, and 16 another break, 15 minutes. Then 4:30 to 6:00.

17 Obviously this is not meant to be 18 ridiculously rigid. We want to have ebb and flow with 19 who is on the stand and where we are, but with the 20 idea that clearly we will need a morning break and a 21 couple afternoon breaks if we are going to keep to 22 this kind of a heavy schedule. We were thinking an

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 hour for lunch rather than longer would be 2 appropriate.

3 Without putting anything in stone today, 4 we are interested in whether you have any reactions or 5 thoughts one way or the other about this.

6 MS. WOODS: We had actually discussed the 7 possibility of 45 minute lunch to make things move 8 along, but we thought an hour with phone calls and 9 everything was probably what was needed.

10 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: We were informed 11 that cell phones don't work in this building and there 12 are no pay phones. So it's well designed to keep our 13 nose to the grindstone.

14 Again, that will be sort of our working 15 model, but you certainly are welcome if you have 16 additional thoughts after reflecting on it over night 17 to bring that to our attention.

18 MR. GARRETT: Just one question, Mr.
19 Chairman. As I say, we passed out this schedule here.
20 This is what we have told all of our witnesses would 21 be the schedule. We had shared this with the 22 webcasters earlier too. I don't know if we will ever

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 have a situation where we might finish with somebody 2 at 3:00, and then we won't have somebody available
3 until the next day because a lot of people are flying 4 across country and most all of our witnesses are from 5 out of town. But I don't want to incur the wrath of 6 the Panel if we finish with a witness at 4:00 and we 7 don't have another one to go on right away.

8 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: If that were to 9 happen on a Friday, I can assure you it would not 10 incur the wrath.

11 (Laughter.)

12 MR. GARRETT: It is usually the cross
13 examiners who make that determination.

14 MR. JACOBY: I think the only problem 15 there is that if you haven't planned adequately to 16 have backup there, the issue is whose clock is running 17 at that point? Since we have a limited amount of 18 time, there is an unfairness that could apply to 19 either side in that situation if you don't have a 20 witness ready, your next witness ready.

21 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: At the same time, 22 you are each at the other's mercy in the sense of how

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 long the witness is going to go, really will depend in 2 significant measure on the amount of cross.

3 Perhaps what we might do is start with 4 this as a framework. Let's see whether we get into 5 periods, or I don't know whether other panelists have 6 a reaction.

7 MR. VON KANN: We were just actually 8 talking at lunch about I remember trying cases some of 9 you have in Montgomery County, where if you finished 10 at 5:15 with your witness, the judge said "Call your 11 next witness. We have 15 minutes." I don't think it 12 would be a problem if occasionally we finished. But 13 if day after day, then the 90 hours per side is going 14 to push us well past whatever cutoff date, September 15 13 or 14, we have targeted. So that's where you could 16 run into a problem.

17 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: It's September
18 13th, and there is not flexibility.

19 MR. GARRETT: I appreciate that. I
20 certainly don't want to be the one to jam up the works 21 here. But we made our best good faith effort here to 22 identify how much time we thought each witness would

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 be on. We shared this with the webcasters a while 2 back. We don't have any feedback from them on how 3 long their cross examination is going to go.

4 For example, we have somebody who is 5 coming in from out of the country and will be arriving 6 at a particular time, and would be obviously not 7 prepared to go.

8 I am happy just to play it by ear. I just 9 want you to understand.

10 MR. VON KANN: Have you told them about 11 how long you expect your direct of each of these 12 witnesses to be?

13 MR. GARRETT: No. We have not had any 14 conversations. We sent them our --

15 MR. VON KANN: This sounds like Alfonse 16 and Gaston. Who first indicates how much time we are 17 going to take with direct or cross. We could have a 18 certain simultaneous exchange.

19 MR. JACOBY: Well, I think the issue there 20 is direct testimony in written form we have. It is a 21 question of how much time either party chooses to take 22 with its direct witness here live obviously. You may

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 choose not to cover every aspect of what they had in 2 their written testimony, for whatever reason.

3 I think looking at the schedule, I mean we 4 understand the practicalities. We have the same 5 problems in terms of witnesses coming in from across 6 the country and what have you. I think the only thing 7 that gives us a little bit of concern looking at the 8 schedule is this particular schedule is somewhat 9 backend loaded with witnesses who are likely to 10 require more cross examination than less, because you 11 have got Mr. Marks and then three experts. Whereas, 12 for example, the date before that is Jennifer Warnes, 13 who I'm sure will give us a wonderful rendition, but 14 I am not sure how extensive the direct or cross will 15 give, and Mr. Bradley.

16 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: You need a lot of 17 time with Mr. Guitar.

18 MR. JACOBY: Unless they are going to get 19 together to do a duo, but if that is the case, we 20 ought to schedule that for Friday.

21 MR. STEINTHAL: Then maybe Steve can be 22 available to start on Monday.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 MR. JACOBY: Steve is someone who is 2 local.

3 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Do you think that 4 that is a possibility?

5 MR. GARRETT: I am sure that would cause
6 no problem at all. I am more concerned about 7 witnesses who are coming from different parts of the 8 country.

9 MR. JACOBY: I think your initial 10 suggestion of maybe we see how it goes. If we don't 11 get out of whack then the first few days, we can 12 probably just live with this until such time we see a 13 problem.

14 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: And with regard to 15 the big picture, assuming you are in a position to 16 start either the afternoon of the 16th or probably 17 more likely the morning of the 17th, that works for 18 you, the way that you planned your sequence of 19 witnesses?

20 MR. JACOBY: Yes. We are tentatively
21 fleshing out a schedule. Obviously we needed theirs 22 first. It may change based on their schedule because

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 we may decide even as a tactical matter to change.
2 But we have provided a batting order. Now we are 3 trying to slot those people in on the days based on, 4 make sure that the availability coincides with what we 5 anticipate here. Of course anything that changes on 6 either side, I think we understand, notify the other 7 side immediately if there is going to be a change in 8 the schedule.

9 MS. WOODS: May I ask, if are going to 10 that, I will be taking the chief scheduling role for 11 this side. May I ask who will be doing that?

12 MR. JACOBY: I don't know, but we will 13 designate someone.

14 MS. WOODS: That would be helpful so we 15 could just --

16 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: I agree. I think 17 that's imminently practical.

18 MR. VON KANN: Have you all discussed 19 between yourselves the extent to which you want to 20 telescope considerably the presentation of direct? I 21 mean as has been pointed out, it has all been 22 presented in writing. We have all read it. All three

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 of us have read all the testimony of all the 2 witnesses. I can't say we have mastered it
3 completely, but having somebody read it to me again 4 will probably not help that much.

5 It does strike me this is going to be a 6 case that the cross examination is going to be much 7 more significant on both sides than spending a whole 8 lot of time rehashing what you have already given us 9 in writing.

10 So I don't know whether you all were 11 envisioning quite brief presentations on direct or 12 quite extensive ones. I guess that is something for 13 you all to think about.

14 MR. JACOBY: Again, it is part of the 15 process of dividing up respectively our own direct and 16 how much time we want to leave for cross.

17 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Are there other 18 administrative matters or issues that we ought to 19 discuss tonight?

20 MR. GULIN: We have the issue of the 21 delegated motions. Has that been mooted? The Yahoo 22 matter. Is that now moot?

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 MR. GARRETT: Yes.

2 MR. JACOBY: That is on the record.

3 So I want it to be imminently clear, lest 4 someone think otherwise. They have waived, as I 5 understand it, the non-cooperation provisions of the 6 Yahoo agreement.

7 MR. GULIN: So that motion is withdrawn.

8 MR. KIRBY: I was just wondering if they 9 had informed Yahoo of the waiver or given us something 10 we can provide to Yahoo concerning the waiver.

11 My name is Tom Kirby, I'm sorry.

12 MR. STEINTHAL: The question is whether 13 there can be something on the record so that Yahoo can 14 be so informed with a piece of paper reflecting that 15 the motion has been mooted by their consent. Unless 16 Bob objects, then we will get a page of this 17 transcript, and that will be the record of it.

18 MR. JACOBY: Or you might just want to do 19 a one or two sentence letter saying that. That way, 20 we don't have to worry about waiting for the 21 transcript or any issues like that.

22 MR. GARRETT: I can send a confirming

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS

1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 letter.

2 MR. JACOBY: A confirming letter signed.

3 MR. GARRETT: Fine. I'll do that.

4 MR. GULIN: And we would like a copy of 5 it, please.

6 MR. GARRETT: No problem.

7 MR. GULIN: And then the remaining issue 8 was in the agreement being reached with respect to the 9 use of documents on cross examination.

10 MS. WOODS: We discussed that matter, and 11 pretty much thought we would need to leave it case by 12 case as the situations arise. We thought that the 90 13 hour limitation would likely cut down a lot on sort of 14 general reading of documents on cross examination, but 15 we thought really we didn't have guidelines to agree 16 to, so we just have to wait.

17 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Okay. We may want 18 to discuss that with you further, depending on how 19 that plays out in our further discussion.

20 It has already been a longish day, even 21 though we didn't have to have lunch here in the 22 library to launch this process. Are there any other

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

1 urgent matters before we adjourn, to see each other 2 right back here at 9:00? We'll look forward to seeing 3 you then.

4 I'm sorry. I guess Mr. Garrett has one.

5 MR. GARRETT: As I understand it, I have 6 been told that there will be more counsel tables 7 provided for us, that that may not occur until 8 tomorrow morning. So there may be some delay in 9 getting started.

10 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: There is one other 11 very important housekeeping matter. This is literal.
12 Apparently, unlike in probably your offices and ours, 13 there is not a crack team that comes through and 14 cleans up cups, bottles, paper scraps, things of that 15 nature. So we have to pretend we are in a national 16 park. True housekeeping. Please leave no trace. You 17 will want your table to look so wonderful and when you 18 walk in tomorrow.

19 MR. STEINTHAL: Where will the witness 20 chair be?

21 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: That is the usual
22 setup. The witnesses over here then.

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

1 COURT REPORTER: One last question.

2 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: One last question.

3 COURT REPORTER: What happens to all these 4 opening statements? Do they get bound in? Some are 5 confidential, some are public. Do you want them bound 6 in?

7 MR. STEINTHAL: Why don't we just leave
8 them.

9 MR. JACOBY: None of it is evidence, 10 obviously in the opening statement.

11 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: I agree. We all 12 have our copies.

13 MR. JACOBY: It's demonstrative. It's not 14 evidence.

15 CHAIRPERSON VAN LOON: Okay. Excellent.
16 Thank you very much.

17 (Whereupon, the proceedings adjourned at 18 6:32 p.m., to reconvene at 9:00 the following 19 morning.)

20 21

22

NEAL R. GROSS

COURT REPORTERS AND TRANSCRIBERS
1323 RHODE ISLAND AVE., N.W.
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-3701

(202) 234-4433

www.nealrgross.com

CERTIFICATE

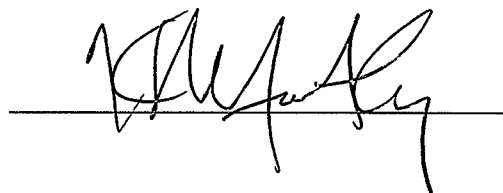

This is to certify that the foregoing transcript in the matter of: Hearing: Digital Performance Right in Sound Recording and Ephemeral Recording,
 Docket No. 2000-9 CARP DTRA 1 & 2

Before: Library of Congress
 Copyright Arbitration Royalty Panel

Date: July 30, 2001

Place: Washington, DC

represents the full and complete proceedings of the aforementioned matter, as reported and reduced to typewriting.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to be "R. M. Kelly", is written over a horizontal line.